Rhodesia Peace Talks Snagged?

Times News Service

PRETORIA — U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young and Foreign Secretary David Owen of Britain met for four hours today with Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa in their search for a peaceful settlement in Rhodesia, then scheduled another session for later today.

A British spokesman also said the two envoys' scheduled departure for Kenya Tuesday might be delayed.

Observers here took the announcement of a second round of talks and possible delayed departure as an indication the talks were not going smoothly.

Vorster's endorsement of the plan is crucial because his white minority regime gives economic and military support to Rhodesia and thus has an influential voice in that country's affairs.

Young and Owen arrived in Johannesburg Sunday from Lusaka, Zambia, where they made limited progress in persuading black Rhodesian nationalists and African heads of state to support the plan.

Owen, who has warned Rh desia that the British-U.S. plan could be its last chance of a peaceful settlement, told reporters on his arrival that an "internationally acceptable negotiated settlement" was essential.

"Anything else will allow the violence to continue for many years."

But he said Britain would not offer South Africa any "trade-offs" in exchange for pressuring Prime Minister Ian Smith into accepting the Anglo-American peace plan.

"Deals don't appeal to anyone," he said. "I don't think they appeal to this government and they do not appeal to ours."

Young and Owen are expected to confer with Smith in Salisbury Thursday.

Details of the Anglo-U.S. plan are expected to be announced officially later this week, but Smith already has rejected one of its requirements as leaked to reporters — that Rhodesia's army be disbanded before blacks take over.

Juggled Figures Hurting Victoria

Victoria is losing out on hundreds of jobs because of the political vindictiveness of the federal government, Conservative MP Allan McKinnon said today.

He said Ottawa is using an arbitrary number on unemployment in each region to award grants under the Canada Works program.

Ottawa's estimate for Victoria is 5.1 per cent.

(Canada Manpower estimates that Victoria's unemployment is above the provincial average of 5.3 per cent.)

"It has become clear Ottawa is playing politics with the Canada Works program," McKinnon said today.

The eight Liberal ridings in B.C. are receiving an average of $1.4 million each under the program while the 13 Conservative ridings are getting only about one-third that much at an average of $530,769 each.

Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich, both Tory ridings, are each getting only the minimum $100,000.

"We have received applications for over 200 projects which would have employed a total of about 1,400 people in Victoria," McKinnon said.

"However, because the grant is only the minimum $100,000, we will be able to approve only three projects employing a total of about 21 people."

"We will have to reject about 197 projects which could have employed 1,379. This is a very bleak prospect."

A similar number of jobs will be lost in Esquimalt-Saanich because the grant is only $100,000.

When the grants were first announced at the beginning of August, McKinnon protested to federal Manpower minister Bud Cullen and was told by his office that the grants were based on unemployment figures.

It subsequently became clear the grants were based on arbitrary numbers, McKinnon said. For example, the work force in Victoria was estimated at 42,000 to create an unemployment level of 5.1 per cent.

The number appears to have been picked out of the air. The work force couldn't possibly be that high."

He said there are 66,000 voters in the riding of whom 20,000 are over 65.

"This leaves only 46,000 and many are housewives. There

OTTAWA (CP) — Six major oil companies will be allowed to increase the price of a gallon of gasoline and home heating oil by between two-tenths of a cent and 1.5 cents effective Tuesday in addition to increases already approved by the federal government.

Earlier, the government approved a 3.2 cent a gallon increase effective Tuesday for gasoline and heating oil because of a federal-provincial agreement last spring raising the well-head price of crude oil by $1 a barrel.

That increase came into effect July 1, but the companies were prevented from passing the higher price on to consumers for 60 days to allow

B.C. Worry In Swedish Devaluation

STOCKHOLM (CP) — The Swedish government devalued the krona about 10 per cent today as part of an economic stabilization program. The payroll tax on industry was lowered to boost exports, and a general price freeze was ordered, effective through Oct. 31, in an attempt to hold the inflation rate down.

The belt-tightening crisis package means that "even urgent social reforms" must be shelved until economic balance is restored, Premier Thorbjorn Falldin said.

In Vancouver Don Lanskaill, president of the council of Forest Industries, said today there is concern in the British Columbia forest industry over Sweden's decision to devalue its currency.

Lanskall said Sweden is the province's main competitor in the pulp and lumber markets of the United Kingdom and Europe.

He said B.C. has enjoyed some competitive advantage over the last year, largely because of the lower value of the Canadian dollar.

Lanskall said although it is too early to predict what total effect the 10 per cent Swedish devaluation will have on the ability of the industry to compete in Europe, it will be unfavorable.

The spokesman said the government is aiming mostly at raising the standards of regional ambulance staff.

Ambulance personnel in large population centres such as Kamloops, Victoria and Vancouver are at the EMA 2, or advanced level, he added.

"I don't want to raise any false hopes," McClelland said. "But we would like to raise the number of ambulance staff in the province, if, and I stress if, the economy of the province says in healthy condition.

Standard Brands Buys Food Firm

The provincial government's move to opt out of Swan Valley Foods Ltd. neared completion today with an announcement that one of Canada's biggest food processors is to take over the Richmond-based phase of the operation.

Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt said Standard Brands Ltd. is to acquire all the shares of Swan Valley, whose assets consist primarily of the Richmond plant which produces en trements in foil-plastic pouches.

Standard Brands will assume day-to-day operations of the plant purchased by the former NDP government, pending necessary federal approvals, said Hewitt.

No price was given for the sale, but the minister said full details of the transaction would be released once the deal is completed.

Earlier this year, the Swan Valley potato processing plant at Creston was sold to the Hardee Farms group under the condition that the company completed construction of the plant's facilities and keep the operation in business for at least three years.

The government agreed in April to sell the Creston operation to the Ontario company for $1.5 million.

The arrangement is that if, after three years, the company can prove to the government that the operation is not viable, Swan Valley will revert back to the government.

CANBERRA (AP) — The Australian government ordered a thorough investigation into the allegation that Australian beef may have been responsible for an outbreak of salmonella food poisoning in the northeastern United States.

Ian Sinclair, the minister for primary industry, said he views the report from the U.S. National Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta with "great concern."

Sinclair said it is possible "that an initial minimal contamination from any source had been allowed to multiply because of less-than-perfect handling during and after processing."

He said, however, that he believes the Australian beef industry's hygiene standards are "second to none" and sat-negotiator Gerald Smith today confirmed reports that the United States and the Soviet Union co-operated in dissuading South Africa from carrying out a nuclear test, Japanese officials reported.

The officials said Smith, in Tokyo to attend U.S.-Japanese nuclear talks, explained the U.S.-Soviet co-operation when he paid a courtesy call to Japanese Foreign Minister Ichiro Hatoyama.

Smith told Hatoyama a tip

from Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev developed into the co-operation with the United States and three West European nations in preventing South Africa's plan to conduct a nuclear test.

The Washington Post said the Soviet Union, without specifying the sources of its information, told the Carter administration Aug. 6 that South Africa was secretly preparing to detonate an atomic explosion in the Kalahari Desert.

It said President Jimmy Carter was visiting his home in Plains, Ga., when the acting chief of the Soviet embassy in Washington called at the White House to deliver an urgent personal message from Brezhnev.

Brezhnev's message, which was relayed by officials of the National Security Council, contained the text of an announcement scheduled to be made public two days later by the official Soviet news agency Tass, The Post said.

At his news conference last

Tuesday, 17 days after receipt of the Soviet message, Carter assured the U.S. people that his administration had received South Africa's promise that "no nuclear test will be taken ... now or in the future."

Strike leaders said that if the French and Spanish controllers join forces with them, they could pose a "powerful new threat" to air traffic in Western Europe. But air traffic has continued although the Spanish controllers began their slowdown a year ago. The French began theirs on Friday and the British strikers staged a slowdown at London's Heathrow and Gatwick airports for 10 days before they went on strike last Thursday.

Leaders of the French air controllers' union were to meet today to decide their response to the British strikers' call.

British Airways reported a gradual improvement in the situation Sunday, the third day of the strike.

"Flights are being maintained by cancelling lightly booked flights and filling up other aircraft," a spokesman for the Civil Aviation Authority at Heathrow said.

It wasn't the average weekend for Victoria's sports crowd.

National and international honors were inbound today as the result of Victoria's accomplishments at the weekend.

Jim Rutledge, 18, became the second Victorian in 20 years to lay claim to the Canadian junior men's golf

Tennis stars Wendy Barkow and Jennifer Bland brought in other national titles following the Canadian junior closed championships in Montreal (page 15).

Juan de Fuca Whalers captured the Canadian intermediate "B" lacrosse championship in Burnaby (page 12) while softball standouts Rosemary Fuller and Barbara Tribe gave Victoria an interest in B.C.'s success in the national senior women's softball tournament. Fuller was named the outstanding pitcher after helping Doc's Blues of New Westminster to the title while Tribe was selected the most valuable player (page 12).

Victoria rowers Ina deLure and Kelly Jacklin carried home bronze medals after helping Canada to a third-place finish in Amsterdam (page 18).

And there may be more on the way. Victoria Shamrocks, leading the best-of-seven final 3-2, hope to wrap up the Western Lacrosse Association championship while Victoria Bates are on their way to Hull, Que., to defend the national senior's men's softball title (page 12).

LONDON (AP) — Assistant air traffic controllers end their four-day strike at six of Britain's seven major airports at midnight tonight. They planned to resume a slowdown at London's two airports and appealed to French and Spanish controllers already on a slowdown to co-ordinate action with them.

Assistant controllers at Prestwick, the Scottish airport that handles much trans-Atlantic air traffic, said they will continue their strike.

Tedious and Repetitious

Elwood Veitch, the Social Credit backbencher from Burnaby, has been put in the trying position of deputy speaker of the legislature the last few days while the regular deputy, Harvey Schroeder, is off touring the province with other members of the House's agriculture committee. It hasn't been an easy time for Veitch because he's been trying to keep order in a House beset by procedural wrangles, filibusters and spurious points of order.

The NDP has launched a determined filibuster (they call it "full discussion," of course) on a section of the Municipal Amendment Act which would give the municipal affairs minister power to revoke or change municipal bylaws. Periodically the government gives up on it and goes on to debate something else, but every time the matter is raised, the filibuster continues.

It occurred to Veitch that the NDP must, by now, be violating a House rule that forbids, at least in theory, "tedious and repetitive debate," and in an effort to prove this to the opposition, Veitch used Hansard to compile a list of subjects covered so far. He found that reference to "absolute power" had been made 24 times, accusations of harm to the public interest had been made 18 times, and several other changes (some of them with little direct reference to the bill) had been made half a dozen times or more.

You're quite right, Mr. Veitch. Debate on the subject is becoming repetitive and highly tedious for anyone forced to listen to it. But if you think your well-researched, factual list is going to make the NDP sit down and be quiet, you haven't yet spent enough time in the deputy speaker's chair.

Repetition and tedium haven't had any effect in curbing debate in the

B.C. House for years. How many times, for example, have the Socreds referred to the "waste and mismanagement" of the former NDP government? How many times have the NDP talked about the Socreds' "friends in big business?" For that matter, how many times has Tory leader Scott Wallace explained his principles of sincerity and moderation in all things?

This session, which drags on through its own momentum as summer threatens to become fall, has been even worse than normal. With few issues of real substance to discuss, all parties are doing nothing more than going over the same old ground over and over and over again. When that's done, they go over it once more.

It isn't just the debate on the municipal act that has become tedious and repetitive. It's the whole legislative session.

Good News

The B.C. Government Good News will be coming through mail slots all over the province this week and next and if you want a respite from the Sox of Sam, air traffic controllers and rising oil prices, read the 20-page tabloid from cover to cover. Guaranteed absolutely safe for children and non-toxic too. Rated G for the whole family.

The monthly newspaper, founded in 1953, has suffered several hiatuses in publication when incoming administrations first kill it off as gross propaganda then reconsider about 18 months into office. As the governing party gets closer to an election, the Good News becomes a simple "information vehicle" for convenient reading."

You'll smile, chuckle and belly laugh your way through the latest reincarnation. Vol. 22, No. 1 has no fewer than half a dozen pictures of Premier Bill Bennett smiling and a blue and orange double page centrefold admonishing British Columbians to crack broad grins as they separate visitors from south of the border from their sawbucks.

The best part, the editors tell us, is that it's free, absolutely no charge to the readers. Now that's Good News.

Whale's Tale

The unseemly arguing over the future of the baby killer whale Miracle — whether she should (or can) be set free, or if she should live out the rest of her years performing in a small pool — smacks of the haggling among relatives at grave side over who's to get how much from their rich uncle's estate.

There's rather too much smarmy self-righteousness and phoney altruism being exuded by the two opposing schools of opinion on the whale.

It's hard not to think of Stanley Burke and his Nanaimo cohorts as an upstart band of knownnothing environmentalists. Burke's effort might be more credible if he wasn't the publisher of a weekly throwaway paper (purchased only last month), and so obviously engaged in an attempt to whip up a little notoriety for his journal.

His whale "expert" was last heard from three years ago when he set sail on a pleasant summer cruise up Georgia Strait, courtesy of a $14,000 LIP grant, playing music, looking for whales to talk to and generally having a very nice vacation.

Has anyone asked Miracle what she thinks of the whole sordid business?

Peking Notebook

City Alive With Sounds of Music

By ROSS H. MUNRO
The Globe and Mail

Every summer evening, as dusk is darkening into night, the Forbidden City in the centre of Peking comes alive with the sound of music.

Beside the moats which pass through the old walled compound men are standing in the shadows, singing and playing musical instruments. People young and old stroll quietly by, stopping now and then to listen to particularly pleasing sounds.

If you walk alongside the moat, you will hear before you will see; the lilting melody provided by a man playing a flute; elaborate birdcalls, a traditional Chinese art form, warbled by an old man standing beneath a tree; the halting high-pitched notes of a Western-style violin played by a youth who is obviously still trying to master the instrument.

Farther on, a young man with a rich tenor voice is singing scales. Each time he hits the final, high note, he waits for it to reach the palace wall across the moat and then echo back across the water before he continues.

In another section of the Forbidden City, two young men standing less than 100 yards apart are singing different tunes. After standing for a few moments, a listener senses that a musical negotiation is under way. When their songs clash unharmoniously, one or the other lowers his voice or even lapses into silence for a moment.

This meant that many avid soccer fans didn't get tickets, while others who didn't care that much found themselves in possession of tickets. Market economics intervened to deal with the contradiction.

In another spot, their backs against the moat wall, two youths are playing guitar while about 15 other young people are sitting around them quietly listening. The first impression of one foreign listener is that the tune sounds like Bluegrass. No, his companion replies, it sounds more like a Russian tune. The two agree only that it is probably not Chinese.

In the protective shadows of the forbidden City, these scenes are private and personal but not subversive. Some of the musicians are playing traditional Chinese tunes; others are playing tunes from revolutionary operas composed after 1949.

One of the young men sings the praises of Mao Tse-tung and then, strangely enough, of Kim Il Sung, the North Korean leader.

The most popular non-political diversion for the people of Peking this summer has been a soccer tournament to which the Chinese invited several teams from developing countries. Tickets, as usual, weren't sold on a first-come first-served basis. Instead, they were distributed mainly through work units.

This meant that many avid soccer fans didn't get tickets, while others who didn't hospitability, whether it's extended to foreigners or fellow Chinese. Cigarette packages are always put on banquet tables and on other occasions for foreigners the Chinese always place a dish of loose cigarettes in front of their guests.

CAAC, China's national airline, is probably one of the last airlines in the world which passes out minipacks of cigarettes to all its passengers. This particular freebie is so popular that, soon after the cigarettes have been distributed, the air in the cabin turns into such a thick grey-blue fog that anyone seated at the rear has difficulty seeing the door to the cockpit.

Children and young women are apparently expected to refrain from smoking but it seems that almost everybody else indulges, even if it's just a few unlabeled puffs now and then on social occasions. Communist party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng smokes Panda Capp cigarettes, a mild filter brand which even privileged foreigners often find difficult to obtain but which Chinese officials somehow acquire. Chairman Mao Tse-tung was a heavy smoker — Chung-hwa brand, the Chinese say — and that probably aggravated the emphysema which reportedly was one of his medical problems.

One foreigner who believes cigarettes are a curse likes to remind Chinese that cigarettes were introduced to China by profit-seeking foreign businessmen, and therefore no politically enlightened Chinese should partake of this product of imperialism. The Chinese listen, giggle and then take another puff.

Despite the warnings of individual doctors who've gradually accepted the Western evidence that smoking is harmful, there are still no signs of any sort of organized anti-smoking campaign. In this poor country, which offers so few personal indulgences, such a campaign may still be a long way off.

Diplomatic missions recently imported a big brand new truck and sent it down to the vehicle inspection station so that it could be passed, licensed and put on the road.

As part of the standard testing procedure, the Chinese inspector drove the truck at fast speed and then jammed on the brake. The truck came to a quick, smooth stop. The truck doesn't pass, the inspector said, because the wheels don't lock when I jam on the brakes.

The foreigner explained that wheel-locking can result in losing control and having an accident. Only recently has a way been found, he said, to avoid wheel-locking and bring a heavy vehicle to a quick but safe stop. With the help of minicomputers, pressure on brakes is slightly and automatically decreased whenever the wheels are about to lock.

* * *

Young musicians end open-air concert

The explanation of this technical breakthrough was of no avail. If the wheels couldn't lock, the truck wouldn't get a licence. There were further visits to the inspection station and further consultations but the Chinese authorities remained adamant. The diplomats finally got in and permitted the truck to be sent to Tsinghua Capt., China's foremost science and engineering university. For two weeks the experts fiddled with the sophisticated braking mechanism. Then the truck was returned and, sure enough, it now comes to a screeching, jolting, wheels-locked stop when the driver jams on the brakes.

* * *

Hospital officials in the nearby city of Shih-chia-chuang were conducting some visitors on a tour of their herbal garden. This yellow flower growing here is the main ingredient in a medicine which is better than Aspirin for treating flu, they say. The gladioli stops pain and swelling, pantries stop inflammation, the lilies can be used for disinfecting and this particular anemone is for treating dysentery.

* * *

Not to sneeze. African witchdoctors were administering a plant containing reserpine years before the drug companies "discovered" it lowers blood pressure.

The Chinese in recent years have been assessing the whole traditional Chinese pharmacopeia, trying to ascertain which herbal medicines are truly effective. If this work is carried on in a systematic and scientific way, China in the years to come may be offering the world some effective new medicines.

Still, there is a very thin line between legitimate herbal medicine and nostrums based on superstition and myth. A case in point: "Most precious three-whip wine," a so-called tonic which China produces, apparently for both the domestic and overseas Chinese markets. There is no mystery surrounding the derivation of the wine's name: its main ingredients are the penises of deer, seals and dogs. The wine came to the attention of the foreign community in Peking when the New Zealand Embassy processed a Chinese order for 1,000 frozen penises of the New Zealand red deer.

The label on the bottle recommends the wine for "general weakness, untimely senility, kidney trouble, neurasthenia, sores in waists and backs, overburdened of the brain, anemia, dizziness, poor memory, involuntary perspiration, insomnia, pale faces, poor appetite."

Recently a few wary but curious foreigners had what amounted to a very brief wine-tasting party. They agreed that to describe the taste as foul and sulphurous was being far too kind to three-wine.

Income Inequality Has High Price

THE PROGRESSIVE
An Editorial

Representative Henry S. Reuss, chairman of the House Committee on Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs, recently released some disquieting statistics on trends in the distribution of income in the United States. His data show that the wealthiest 40 per cent of the population increased its share of national income from 64.2 per cent in 1968 to 65.2 per cent in 1975, while the income of the poorest 40 per cent fell from 18 to 17.2 per cent in the same period. Reuss noted that in recent years Americans have encountered "an ever more inequitable distribution of family income."

In fact, Reuss's data underscore the problem of inequality in America. When we look at the distribution of wealth rather than income — the ownership of productive resources including stocks and bonds, savings accounts, and real estate — we find that the top 10 per cent of the population controls 56 per cent of the nation's wealth, and that there has been no significant change in this ratio since at least the Second World War.

Some economists dismiss such data, arguing that the important question is whether the whole pie is growing. Confrol over land and money has given these few growers disproportionate power in Florida and national politics. Last year, they used their economic leverage to prevent Florida educational television stations from showing a documentary about the conditions in which farm workers live and work. Economic power is cultural and political power, and in Florida it is used to keep farm workers, who must struggle for $80 or $90 a week in the best of times, in dehumanizing jobs.

Addiction Feeding on Time

By GLORIA STEINEM
The Progressive

We are hooked on television. We spend more hours than we would ever admit, even to the most anonymous pollster, looking at that cursed window on a strange and saccharine world where everything has a reason, a plot, a certain predictable liveliness and order.

If we find ourselves in a strange hotel room or guest room where there is no television set, we feel a yawning emptiness. If we go on vacation with no television, we feel unhooked from the world.

Within our addictions, there may be differences, of course. My particular drugs are old movies and endless news reports. That allows me contempt for people who are hooked on situation comedies and quiz shows — and I'm sure they feel the same contempt for my habit of watching the same movie twice, or the same news story on all three networks. But those differences are just distinctions between heroin and cocaine. The larger truth is that we are hooked. The ubiquitous box is eating up our time. And time is all there is.

This confessional is prompted by a current book called The Plug-In Drug, by Marie Winn. Its author is mostly concerned with children, and what effect it has on them to spend a third of their waking hours — as American children now do — just passively watching television. She makes the McLuhanesque point that it isn't the program content that matters, it's the passivity: the sinister impact always being acted upon, instead of acting.

Until I read that book, I was convinced that my addiction was the result of being a 1950s person who didn't grow up with television. I figured that today's kids got immunized early; that television just became a normal part of everyday life that they could take or leave alone.

Well, that's wrong. In fact, the reason I act at all may be my non-television childhood. Perhaps the reason so many world leaders are over 60 is because they grew up on activism. If you and I and our parents just stopped watching television, we might gain not only time, but the energy to change the world.

You may choose to kick the habit by going cold turkey. Or you may start gradually by breaking that incredible concentration, and walking around during commercials, as addiction-experts recommend. The way we unhook ourselves is a matter of character and personal style.

But I find radio a kind of methadone that helps in the unhooking process. Some convolution of our brain is still occupied if we listen to radio while driving or brushing our teeth or cleaning the house, that's true. But at least we can walk around. And that's the way revolutions happen — one step at a time.

'Laetrile-Helped' Patient Study Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. federal officials are making plans this week for conducting case studies of several hundred cancer patients who say the controversial substance Laetrile helped them.

The officials believe the patients' experiences will confirm their diagnosis that the purported cancer cure is worthless.

They said, however, that if the review does not conclude support their stand, the government would consider testing Laetrile for the first time on volunteer cancer patients.

He did not say when the meeting will be held.

Dr. Upton was questioned

on NBC's Meet the Press.

Government will decide how to pick the cases it will review in a meeting among representatives of his agency, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and the Cancer Control Center (CDC).

He did not say when the meeting will be held.

Dr. Upton was questioned

on NBC's Meet the Press.

In a telephone interview Sunday night, Dr. Newell said the planned review hopes to "collect cases of people who have been treated (with Laetrile) to collect objective information, so we can determine whether there are some bona fide remissions."

Dr. Newell said the government may study x-rays, slides and charts of several hundred patients who used Laetrile.

LAETRILE LEGAL IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

New Hampshire is one of 11 states which approved use of the medication, which some say can cure cancer. Others dismiss the drug as having no medical value.

A bill allowing its use said through the legislature, but Gov. Meldrim-Thomson allowed it to become law without his signature.

"Clearly the use of Laetrile instead of current and medically recognized methods of prevention, treatment and management of cancer can be futile, expensive, dangerous and fatal," Thomson warned in allowing the bill to become law June 27.

"However, I also believe that our citizens should have the right to make their own decisions in consultation with their doctors, as to what treatment and drugs they might receive," Thomson said.

U.S. Embassy Gutted In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet firemen tried to enter the top-secret military attaché's office during an 18-hour blaze that wrecked portions of the U.S. Embassy, but ambassador Malcolm Toon said Saturday he saw no reason to suspect "a sinister Soviet backdrop" to the fire.

U.S. security agents refused to allow the Soviets to enter the secret quarters on the top floor of the 10-story embassy, Toon said.

The Americans eventually were forced to flee to escape choking smoke and heat from the blaze concentrated two floors below, but the combination lock on the armored vault door of the military attaché's office melted, sealing off the chamber.

Toon reported an initial inventory of highly sensitive documents and equipment showed, "so far there has been no compromise of security."

The ambassador blamed the fire, which broke out Friday night, on an "electrical fault" in embassy wiring and said repairs would take three to five months.

Speaking to reporters in his temporary headquarters at the embassy's commercial office a block away from the main chancery, Toon reported the battalion chief of the Soviet firemen several times asked permission for his men to inspect the embassy's 10th-floor office.

The Soviets claimed fire was burning through the top floor, but Toon said American security men checked the area and found no flames, so they refused the Soviets permission to enter.

After an added precaution later when American security personnel were forced to retreat from the fire zone, Toon said, he ordered embassy personnel to monitor all entrances and fire truck ladders to make sure no documents were removed from the 27-year-old building.

Vance Briefs Carter On 'Confident' Chinese

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance is telling President Carter that Chinese leaders are confident, secure in their power and more relaxed than past visitors have found them, an administration official said.

"What comes back from China reinforces the feeling we had at the outset—that this is a very propitious time for renewed contact at the highest level," said the official. But he said there are no plans for Carter to follow Vance to Peking in the near future.

The informant, who declined to be identified, gave an assessment of Vance's report to Carter late Sunday on his four-day visit to Peking last week.

Full diplomatic recognition of China remains at the end of "a long road," the source said.

"It's an ultimate goal," the official said, "but results may not be immediately apparent."

In a statement issued by the White House, Vance and the president said they anticipated "additional constructive meetings (with the Chinese) in the weeks and months ahead."

The statement gave no hint of when these meetings will be or which officials will participate. It said Carter and Vance found the secretary's trip "a good beginning" toward recognizing Peking, but

EPILEPSY CLUE?

CHICAGO (UPI) — Epilepsy may be the result of a chemical deficiency in the blood, according to a report today at the 174th meeting of the American Chemical Society.

The disease which has long baffled researchers has been linked with diminished levels of manganese in the blood of some patients and their mothers, reported Dr. Yukio Tanaka of St. Mary's Hospital in Montreal.

Research has revealed in general that children with convulsions have lowered manganese levels — 8.5 micrograms per litre of blood compared to a normal average of 14.5, said Tanaka, who is hopeful the discovery will be a breakthrough in controlling the disease.

Cleaning Blood Helps Cure Schizophrenics

TORONTO (CP) — The unorthodox research of a Florida kidney specialist who has linked schizophrenia to a buildup of poisonous substances in the blood is being followed closely in Canada.

Dr. James Cade's therapy for schizophrenia involves the use of hemodialysis ordinarily used for saving the lives of patients whose kidneys have stopped functioning. The patients are hooked up to a machine that circulates their blood through a cleansing fluid and removes the poisons.

When Cade, a nephrologist at University of Florida, first told faculty psychiatrists of his idea, they were more than skeptical. But he tested his theory and today some psychiatrists and other medical specialists are taking serious note. Of 17 schizophrenics who have received dialysis, Cade says 10 are behaving in a normal manner and have "dramatically improved."

His research is being followed in Canada because the toxic theory of schizophrenia has long been a subject of research here. Canadian research, however, has concentrated on countering the poison rather than removing it.

The first dialysis treatment of a schizophrenic patient was six years ago. Cade and his research partner, psychiatrist Herbert Wagenaar, have displayed publicizing their experiments because of fear of professional ridicule.

They recently delivered a paper to the American Society for Clinical Pharmacology and Therapeutics and published a study in the July issue of the American Journal of Psychiatry.

Cade said the first patient was a 26-year-old woman who consulted him about a kidney infection but who had a mental condition far more serious than her kidney ailment. She had been diagnosed as a schizophrenic at age 14 and had been in and out of mental hospitals.

To rid her of her kidney infection Cade prescribed a series of dialysis treatments. Each session takes five to eight hours.

Cade said the patient's infection cleared up as expected and there was a remarkable improvement in her mental health. Today, she has no symptoms of schizophrenia and is self-supporting as a secretary. She has a dialysis treatment every two months.

Cade credits a Canadian biochemist and psychiatrist, Dr. Abram Hoffer, now practising in Victoria, for having inspired his interest in "the chemistry of madness."

For almost 30 years, Hoffer has been a controversial medical figure because of his rejection of the traditional theory that schizophrenia is caused by emotional hardship and rejection. In scores of scientific papers, many of them in collaboration with Dr. Humphrey Osmond, he argued that schizophrenia was caused by a poison manufactured by the patient's own body.

"Cade is on the right track," said Hoffer. "But I predict his ideas and research will meet with strong resistance from most psychiatrists in Canada and the U.S."

The notion that schizophrenia can be "cured" by purify-

MIRACLE'S BETTER: SHE'S OFF DRUGS

Miracle, the baby killer whale being nursed at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel's swimming pool, is off antibiotics for the first time since treatment began Aug. 11.

Sealand manager Angus Matthews said today that she was given a "very good bill of health" after a thorough examination on Sunday.

The examination was carried out by Dr. Alan Hoey, Sealand's consultant veterinarian; Dr. Tag Gornall, veterinary consultant for the Seattle aquarium, and pathologist Dr. Ken Thornton.

Matthews said the examination showed the internal bleeding which worried the medical staff last week has stopped.

"The white-cell blood count is close to normal, too," Matthews said, adding that le-

Island Mills Operating, But Discontent Remains

Vancouver Island sawmills and plywood mills are all back in operation today as the last group of discontented welders and automotive mechanics returned to work.

The employees, members of the International Woodworkers of America, were on strike Wednesday and, at its peak, the walkout closed eight mills and idled more than 4,000 workers.

By Friday night all the employees were back on the job, with the exception of those at B.C. Forest Products' Yuleau operation. They started back today.

Meanwhile, IWA members on the coast and in the interior will vote over the next three weeks on tentative agreements reached late last week.

The coastal agreement between the IWA and the Forest Industrial Relations was completed Friday and the next day a similar package was settled for employees working for companies represented by Interior Forest Relations.

SAANICH PENINSULA STILL LACKS WATER

The chairman of the peninsula water commission, James Cumming, warned on the weekend that the water situation remains critical despite last week's rain.

"One week's extravagance and we're back where we started," he said.

What Do I Do Now?

Hunt Leads Cosmos To NASL Title Win

PORLAND, Ore. (AP) — Steve Hunt, an unknown English winger not listed in New York's pre-season media guide, already is planning to ask for a raise after leading the Cosmos to a 2-1 Soccer Bowl victory over Seattle Sounders.

"I'm very pleased with myself," Hunt said following his team's victory in the North American Soccer League championship.

"I gave 120 per cent during the playoffs. I've always believed in my own ability, and it paid off." When asked if he would seek a raise, Hunt replied, "you're bloody right."

Hunt, 21, joined the Cosmos just before the season when his contract was bought from Aston Villa of the English League.

It was Hunt's opportunistic goal early in the game that broke Seattle's momentum, even though the Sounders came back minutes later to tie it up.

Hunt was named the outstanding player in the game.

Just before the first goal of the game at 19:05, Seattle goalie Tony Chrusky glanced over his left shoulder in preparing to put the ball on the ground and clean it. Hunt was behind Chrusky's right shoulder and suddenly broke for the ball without Chrusky's knowing it.

As Chrusky fought to prevent Hunt from dribbling the ball into the net from only a few feet out, he stepped on Hunt's heel, and both players fell into the net along with the ball.

Giorgio Chinaglia later took a cross from Hunt to head in the winning goal with 12:41 remaining in the game. It was Chinaglia's 24th of the season and it gave the Cosmos their second NASL championship.

Portland's Civic Stadium was crammed with 35,548 fans, a record turnout for a NASL championship game.

Sounders forward Tommy Ord fired a kick past goalkeeper Shep Messing for the only Seattle goal.

Pele, the Brazilian star forward, produced periodic displays of dazzling footwork and took seven shots on goal, but he was marked closely by the Sounder defenders. The game was Pele's final contest in the NASL.

Doc's Blues Capture Title

VANCOUVER (CP) — Irene Costello tossed a two-hitter at Vancouver Eldorados Sunday night as Doc's Blues of New Westminster brought British Columbia its fifth softball title in six years with a 4-0 victory.

Doc's Blues opened the scoring in the title game with a bases-loaded walk in the first inning. Heather Cranston tripled home two runs in the third and Ann McLeod's double in the seventh scored the other run.

Costello struck out three and walked none.

Doc's Blues reached the final by beating Quebec 6-0 behind the pitching of Rosemary Fuller who struck out eight.

Fuller, of Victoria, was named the tournament's best pitcher.

Eldorados reached the final by shading Quebec 2-1.

On Saturday, Vancouver beat Ontario 2-0 after Quebec bested Ontario 3-2. Vancouver scored two wins over a Calgary club, 11-3 and 1-0 in 11 innings, while the Albertans beat New Brunswick 3-0. Saskatchewan turned back the Yukon 5-4 and New Brunswick beat the Northwest Territories 5-0. Doc's Blues beat Manitoba 8-1, while Quebec bounced the Yukon 3-1.

Wally Stipe Dies Suddenly

Former well-known Victoria rugby player and basketball official, Walter (Wally) Stipe, 65, died suddenly at Duncan on Sunday.

Stipe was prominent in high school rugby and later with James Bay Athletic Association. He played senior basketball in Victoria and later was one of the top referees in the province.

He had been in the automotive business in Duncan for the past 18 years.

He is survived by his wife, Mary, at home, a son Brian, in Toronto; a daughter, Joanne in Ottawa; and a daughter Patsy on the mainland.

Young Visitor Hooks a Bike

Nine-year-old Drew Tyre will have quite a tale to tell his friends when he returns home to Edmonton — about how he went fishing for salmon and caught a bicycle.

Tyre, who was fishing with his grandfather Harold Andrew, took first prize of a bicycle donated by the Victoria Times in the annual Junior Derby held Sunday by the Victoria Intel Anglers' Association.

The young visitor to Victoria was about a third of the way back to Brentwood Bay from Bambergton and trolling with an old McKnight spoon, six ounces of weight and 100 feet of line when he tied into the seven pound, five ounce salmon that topped the fishfest.

Mike Sekoranja took the trophy for VSIAA members and second prize of a spinning rod with a 6-10-pounder.

A Rock Show Tonight?

Victoria Shamrocks meet Vancouver Burrards in the sixth game of their best-of-seven Western Lacrosse Association final series at Memorial Arena tonight and the Irish are going to have to go without their captain.

Veteran Ranjit Dillon, seventh on the list of all-time scorers in the WLA, is probably out for the balance of the season because of a shoulder injury he received in the fourth series game here last Thursday.

Shamrocks lead the series against Burrards, 3-2, as Burrards put on a tremendous rally in Vancouver Saturday night to edge Victoria 12-11.

Burrs, who faced elimination, scored five unanswered goals, four in one minute and 47 seconds and three in 45 seconds, to come from behind a three-goal deficit with only eight minutes to play.

The Vancouver rally was similar to the manner in which the Shamrocks had won the fourth game of the series in Victoria Thursday.

Shamrocks trailed that one late in the third period, then erupted for three goals in the span of 35 seconds to snatch victory away from Burrards 13-9.

All the games have been close. Shamrocks won the first 11-10 and the second 10-9. Burrards won the third 9-8.

Coach Nirmal Dillon of the Shamrocks was understandably disappointed. "I figured we had it," he said as the Shamrocks moved ahead 1-7 in the third period.

"But they got a power-play goal and then we got caught in a defensive lapse. Before we could get out of it, the damage had been done. We let them shoot, so it was our own fault."

Burrards took a 4-1 lead in the first period thanks mostly to outstanding goalkeeping by Dave Evans. "We outplayed them, but Evans was spectacular," said Dillon.

Then, in the second period, the Shamrocks started back and with goalie Larry Smetzler taking over with a strong display, outscored Burrards seven goals to two to take a 9-8 lead.

It might have been more as Larry Bell scored just before the whistle but the play was called back by an interference call on the Rocks.

Defending Canadian champions and co-holders of the world men's softball championship, Victoria Bate held off Hull, Quebec, and their seventh consecutive appearance in the Canadian championship.

Winning the last two years, Bates open their bid for a third straight title against Prince Edward Island at 10:30 a.m. Victoria time Tuesday and play their second game against New Brunswick at 5:30 p.m. On Wednesday, Bates play Alberta at 9 a.m.

All Bates games will be broadcast over radio station CJYV 900.

Only addition to Bates for the championship is a former Bates pitcher and now a member of the Vancouver Eldorados team, Glen Langseth.

Other Bates' games this week are Friday against Nova Scotia at 6 a.m. and Quebec at 7 p.m.

Following round-robin play in two divisions, the playoff schedule will take place with the first two teams in each of the Red and Blue divisions taking part.

Bates are in the Blue Division.

In the third period, the Rocks kept command and moved into that 10-7 margin on a pair of shorthanded goals by Ron MacNeil and Doug Angrave.

Then came the problems. Terry Sanderson hauled down Doug Hayes and, on the power play, Dave Tasker scored. Little more than a minute later, Tak Vohalis beat Smeltzer. Thirty-two seconds after Vohalis' goal, Hayes got the equalizer and just 11 seconds later Ron Pinder put Burrards ahead. Pat Ryan got what proved to be the winner at 16:40. He was left alone in front of the goal crease.

Shamrocks pulled goals. Smetzler and MacNeil scored to bring the Irish close at 12-11 at 18:30. Thirty seconds later Smetzler was pulled again, MacNeil made the same play, but this time Evans beat him. The Rocks didn't get another chance.

Baker had an outstanding game for the Rocks with his second straight seven-point performance. He had two goals and five assists.

MacNeil, Chaim Dhillon and Angrave each scored two goals for the Rocks while singles went to Joe McCrea, Sanderson and Dan Green.

Hayes and Dale MacKenzie each scored three goals for Burrards. Tasker had a pair, with singles going to Pinder, Vohalis, Ryan and Rico Bellucci.

Dhillon suffered ligament damage to his shoulder while checking an opponent in Thursday's game and his future availability will be determined on how quickly he recovers. Ken King will replace him again tonight. Dillon did not play Saturday.

Winner of the series will meet Brampton Excelsior in the Mann Cup final starting Saturday, Sept. 3.

Dolphin Streak Continues

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Frank Hindle doesn't mind losing games and Victoria Dolphins are putting his tolerance to a good test.

But the means and manners employed to extend Victoria's futile record in the Big Four Junior Football League are starting to bother the Dolphin coach.

Hindle exhibited some of his tolerance by paying tribute to his players, still without victory after 3½ seasons, after Dolphins dropped another, 19-0, to North Shore Cougars. Hindle, however, wasn't as kind about the refereeing or North Shore's performance at Royal Athletic Park.

"I don't mind losing," he intoned, "but I do object to the tacky performance by North Shore. They were chippy. They're big enough and perhaps good enough to play the game without resorting to the bench."

On the field, and as in the past three games, the Dolphins had their chances. There was a difference to their failing this time, however. Stung by defensive lapses in their first three starts, the Dolphins suffered Sunday because of a letdown by the offensive line.

The heavier North Shore defence dominated the going. Cougar defenders enjoyed their greatest moment in the third quarter when they successfully stopped Dolphins on a first-and-goal situation from the 1½-yard line.

But the North Shore defence also was fortunate in scoring the shutout. Two passes by Victoria quarterback Mark Townsend had "touchdown."

Wayne Stadnyk and Brad Hendry — suffered injuries that added to Hindle's ire. Stadnyk, one of the standouts on defence, suffered a possible broken finger while Hendry is believed to have suffered a broken arm.

In addition, Dolphins lost Terry Lacroix for at least one game after he was ejected from the game, along with Ian MacDonald of the Cougars.

"One of the North Shore players came off the bench to intimidate his opponents," said Hindle.

"Lacroix won't be able to play the next game because the referees weren't doing their job. All they saw was the retaliation but they couldn't see the man come off the bench."

JIM RUTLEDGE ... Canada's best

Rutledge Stands Up to Pressure

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Jim Rutledge is a modest, soft-spoken 15-year-old Victoria golfer who won the Canadian junior men's championship Saturday by remaining calm in the face of the toughest pressure situation he has faced in his young career.

Rutledge shot a final-round 65—the best round of the tournament—to put Rutledge under tremendous pressure down the stretch.

But in the end it was the consistency of Rutledge—who failed to make the cut last year—that made the difference.

The B.C. junior champ and winner of this year's Island Open took a six-shot lead into the final round and said before teeing off he needed only to shoot another par round on the Coole Municipal Golf Course to win.

"I was sure par would win but I never figured it would be this close," he said after receiving the junior trophy.

Canadian junior.

Cameron shot a final-round

"I've been under pressure before but I must say that when I came up to 18 with only a one-shot lead I was a bit worried."

Rutledge took a bogey on 17 when his two-foot putt lipped out and that moved Cameron, playing in the threesome immediately ahead, to within one stroke.

The B.C. junior champ and winner of this year's Island Open took a six-shot lead into the final round and said before teeing off he needed only to shoot another par round on the Coole Municipal Golf Course to win.

"I was thinking I wanted to get my first putt as close as I could but it rolled about three feet past and looked pretty long also."

But he calmly rolled in the pressure putt to claim the title.

Rutledge and Cameron, who charged out of a group of four golfers tied for second place after the third round, were the only two contenders after the first three holes Saturday.

The other three with a brief hope of winning—Ted Bishop of Fort Erie, Ont., Peter Hayes of Winnipeg and Dan Kodatsky of Port Credit, Ont.—all ran into early problems and eliminated themselves from the chase.

Cameron birdied the second and fourth holes but took a disastrous double bogey on the fifth.

Hayes, first-round leader, went six-over-par on the first three holes Saturday and although he was one-under-par the rest of the way, he finished with a 75 and a 294 total. That left him tied for fourth place with Francis Edmunds of Thunder Bay who had a final round 73.

Bishop shot 73 Saturday to finish third at 291 and Kodatsky soared to a 78 and finished back at 297.

The chase for the juvenile title was very hot as close as it was to the Rutledge-Cameron match-up. Eric Kaufmanns of Aylmer, Que., finally emerged victorious after a final-round 72 for a 296 total and a one-shot margin over third round leader Rob Hoski of Waynesburg, Ont. Hoski shot a 74 Saturday.

Fir Kaufmanns, it was third time lucky. Twice before he had failed in his bid to become juvenile champion. In 1975, he finished second and last year he lost in a playoff.

Springboks Triumph

PRETORIA (Reuters) — The South African Springboks beat an international team 45-24 in an exhibition rugby match Saturday. The international team, made up of players from six countries, including New Zealand, lacked the experience as a team to beat the strong Springbok side.

Irwin Proves a Point; Regains Series Berth

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Leonard Thompson was bewildered.

He'd just played the back nine in a course-record 29. He had a round of 66 and, on the feared No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club—one of the most demanding layouts in the United States—had finished 72 holes in a dizzying 15 strokes under par.

"What do you have to do to win around here?" Thompson inquired after finishing a distant second to Hale Irwin, who was 20 under.

Irwin, who had to win to prove a personal point—"there was no alternative," he said—compiled rounds of 65, 62, 69 and 68 into a 264 total, the best score of the year on the pro tour, and won by five strokes over Thompson in the Hall of Fame golf tournament Sunday.

"The score, on this golf course, is amazing," Irwin said. "It is not amazing that I won. I had to win. Any win is nice. This is particularly so."

It may have been the sweetest of his nine career triumphs, most of which have come over the most difficult courses America can offer.

The authoritative manner in which he subdued famed No. 2 made it one of his most notable.

More important, to Irwin, at least, it proved a point. It got him back in the World Series of Golf, to be played this weekend at Akron, Ohio.

"I'd been shuffled off, told I wasn't good enough," Irwin said. "There've been two World Series (under the new, expanded format) and I've had to qualify three times."

And he didn't like it at all.

The whole matter, he said, "was not handled properly. It was not fair."

It involves his in-and-out status in the exclusive field for the World Series.

When Irwin won the Atlanta tournament May 29 he was told he'd qualified for the World Series from a points list. He made his plans accordingly, taking some time off, turning down some financial offers to play in the World Series.

Six weeks later, he was told there had been an error in compiling the points. He wasn't in. He was out.

"Only his victory here, which qualified him as a double winner for the year, got him in. He could make it in no other fashion. It was, he said prior to the tournament, "a must-win situation."

He won with little difficulty, starting the hot, humid final round with a five-stroke margin, holding a six-or-seven-shot lead most of the day and then nailing it down with a deft little pitch over trouble for an eagle three on the 16th hole.

No one really got close.

Rookie Jeff Mitchell finished third with a 67-272, eight shots back. J. C. Snead, with a closing 68, and Lou Graham, with a 70, were next at 274, 10 behind.

Masters and British Open champ Tom Watson was ninth with 69-276 and just missed reaching the $300,000 plateau. He now has $298,428 and, in the World Series, will join Johnny Miller and Jack Nicklaus as the only men to reach $300 in a single season.

Irwin won $50,000 from the total purse of $250,000 and pushed his winnings for the year to $156,456.

BARLOW, JENNIFER BLAND CAPTURE JUNIOR HONORS

MONTREAL — Victoria's Wendy Barlow earned the distinction of being Canada's top junior women's tennis player while clubmate Jennifer Bland picked up a share of a double title in the windup of the Canadian closed championships.

Winner of the recent Canada Games title, Barlow, captured the national under-18 crown Saturday by turning on the power to defeat defending champion Nicole Marois of Quebec City, 6-1, 6-4.

Marois, however, gained a measure of revenge by teaming up with Helen Pelletier to take the doubles by defeating Barlow and Nina Bland 7-6, 6-1.

Nina, also of Victoria, earned third place in the under-18 division by scoring 6-1, 6-3, 7-5 victory over Clare Lardner of Toronto.

Jennifer Bland dropped a tough 4-6, 7-5, 6-3 struggle to Karen Dewis of Toronto in the under-18 finale. Jennifer then teamed up with Devia to win the under-18 doubles.

Another Toronto girl, Denise Barbiero, captured the under-14 title with a 4-6, 6-2, 7-6 victory over Christine Picher of St. Jerome, Que.

Mike Puc, Marc Irmann and Benoit Lemieux captured the boys' titles.

Puc won the under-18 crown by defeating fellow-Torontonian Dan Whittaker 7-6, 7-6. Irmann swept aside Alan Barr 6-3, 6-3 in the all-Montreal boys' under-16 final while Benoit, from nearby Laval, registered a 6-4, 6-4 upset over to-seeded Alan Rakoc of Toronto to take the under-14 honors.

Canada's Students Improve From 15th to Seventh Place

SOFIA, Bulgaria (CP) — Janet Nutter of Winnipeg won Canada's last medal of the 1977 World Student Games, a bronze for finishing third Saturday in the women's three-metre diving competition.

The Queen's University graduate, who said she will seek a teaching job in Toronto when she gets home, moved up from fourth place on her last dive, a reverse layout with 1½ twists.

With the men's basketball team finishing fourth and the women sixth and the swimmers shut out of the final day, Nutter's bronze left Canada with four gold, six silver and five bronze medals for seventh place in the standings and fifth-place in over all total medals.

Canada was 15th overall at the last Student Games in 1973 at Moscow.

The bronze medal erased a fourth-place finish in the tower competition, where normally she is more solid than in springboard.

In basketball, Czechoslovakia forced Canada into a series of errors for a 75-75 victory in the showdown for third place.

The game came apart for Canada mid-way through the first half when the Czechoslovaks scored eight consecutive points to build a seven-point lead that lasted until the 15th minute.

Canada pulled to within two points with about four minutes remaining but could not sustain its momentum despite the brilliant play of guard Martin Riley of Winnipeg. Riley scored 14 of his 18 points in the last half.

The water polo team tied

West Germany in its final game to end 11th while the men's volleyball team whopped Egypt 13-7, 16-14, 15-3 to finish 13th and the women downed the Netherlands 13-10, 15-10, 15-8 to wind up 15th.

Based on the bidding West's normal lead should have been a spade, the only unbid suit. Had this lead been made, South would have won the trick and attacked the diamond suit. He would then have made 11 tricks: three spades, four hearts and four diamonds.

But something told West he should not lead a spade. After now ended up with 11 tricks.

Oilers Face Fight

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oilers may have been awarded 13 players by the World Hockey Association, but other clubs are claiming they have the rights for at least two of them.

"Possession is nine-tenths of the law," said Rudy Pilous of Winnipeg Jets in commenting on the WHA decision to award the rights of Joe Michelleti, formerly with Calgary Cowboys to the Oilers.

"Michelleti has been signed, sealed and delivered," Pilous said. "He's even received some money. He wants to play for the Jets and will play for the Jets."

Edmonton owner Peter Pocklington said: "We know Michelleti doesn't want to play here and in his case we're willing to work out a deal which would bring us somebody else."

Edmonton coach Glen Sather said he knew that all along and it was his plan.

"Michelleti's a good defenceman but we have a lot of good defencemen," Sather said. "We want a forward."

And in Quebec the Nordiques said they have obtained the contracts of four Calgary players, including Ron Chipperfield, who the Oilers were announcing as another of the 13 players decided to them by the WHA decision.

As for Chipperfield who was unavailable for comment, Sather said he has no intention of playing in Quebec and wants to play here.

Sather said he's not going to take anybody from Quebec other than Chipperfield and adds that the Oilers have been promised by WHA chairman Ben Hatzkin that the league will back them to the hilt.

Hatzkin said: "The players are on Edmonton's list. Right now we're letting the clubs work it out if they can. If they can't it will go to the league for arbitration."

TAIWAN CONTINUES SERIES DOMINATION

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Ching Chen-jung, whose .333 batting average set a new tournament record, drove in a pair of runs with three singles and pitched a four-hitter Saturday to lead Li-Teh Little League of Taiwan to a 7-2 victory over Western Little League of El Cajon, Calif., in the 31st annual baseball Little League World Series.

The title was the ninth in the last 11 years for a Far East representative to the tournament.

The five-foot-five, 143-pound Chen-jung batted 10 for 13 with 10 RBIs in three games in the tourney.

Chen-jung's hitting broke the old mark of .333 set in 1973 by Chen Pal-sheng, also of Taiwan. Chen-jung also struck out nine and walked two to pick up the win.

COMMISSION OFFICIALS SAY:

Metric Road Conversion 'Cinch'

OTTAWA (CP) — The conversion to metric speed limits is being introduced on most highways, roads and streets in September and the switch is being advertised as a cinch.

Some critics predict an increase in accidents but the federal Metric Commission says experience doesn't back that up. In fact, say commission officials, the accident rate dropped in the three months after the new metric speed limits were introduced in Australia in 1974.

"When you go out on the highway in September, you aren't going to drive any differently than you did before."

says P.C. Boire, a commission executive-director.

Boire says drivers will continue to judge speed unconsciously by how the vehicle motor sounds and how fast roadside objects are flashing past. Drivers will pace themselves by the general speed of traffic.

But the commission, provincial governments, the automobile industry and motorizing groups are pumping out publicity, new speedometers and other aids to facilitate the changeover to kilometres an hour from miles per hour.

Distances will also be measured in kilometres and com-mision officials say that may be harder to get accustomed to.

Most provinces will be installing metric speed signs beginning in the first week of September. Manitoba is postponing the starting date to next April and Quebec may not be ready with the necessary legislation to begin at the same time as the other provinces.

The Yukon and Northwest Territories councils are expected to approve metric speed limits in October.

Provincial officials say they plan to put up metric speed signs on provincial highways in a matter of days. Cities and towns will be setting up signs at the same time.

Police spokesmen warn that there will be no leniency in the early stages of the metric speed system. Pleading ignorance won't help.

Wilfred Bolton, OOP assistant commissioner, said the kilometre speed limits will be enforced as soon as the metric signs are erected.

"Once the signs are there, that's it."

Boire denies that the speed and distance signs will confuse motorists, prompt accidents and upset tourists.

The accident rate declined in Australia just after that country introduced the metric speed limits and no one knows why, Boire said.

"You might speculate that people knew something was being done and were a little more careful."

Alan Listiak, a sociology professor at Queen's University, has said the metric change will lead to an immediate increase in accidents; that drivers are already mentally overloaded; and that converting miles to kilometres adds to confusion.

He also suggests that American tourists may turn back when they see metric speed and distance signs at border points.

The U.S. has not yet converted to the metric highway system though work has begun.

Metric distance signs are up on some American highways.

Boire said Listiak is "an alarmist when he says the accident rate will go up."

As for tourists, federal tourism offices are sending out metric information to Americans seeking information about Canada. Pamphlets are being provided at border points.

Federal television and radio advertisements are also being sent to American television and radio stations along the border.

Some critics have said Canada should adopt the international metric speed sign with the speed figure contained within a red circle.

But Boire said the metric steering committee for highway signs decided to continue the North American rectangular signs with the larger numerals because they could be better seen by oncoming motorists.

The commission executive-director said the commission has no legal power to impose

COFFEE HEATERS SOLD ILLEGALLY

TORONTO (CP) — Small immersion heaters for coffee or other liquids are being sold illegally in some parts of Canada and may be dangerous, the Canadian Standards Association (CSA) says.

John Ainscough of the CSA's audit investigation branch said in a recent interview that a bulletin has been issued provincial inspection authorities to make them aware of the heaters. Association tests showed the units may cause burns or fires.

He said the devices are not CSA approved and that under legislation in all provinces, it is illegal to advertise, sell, dispose of or use any electrical product not certified.

"We had a report from Halifax that one of the heaters fell out of a cup and set bedclothes on fire in a hospital," Ainscough said.

He said the devices were made in Japan for a Boston company and are being distributed in Canada by a small order house.

'No Organized Move' To Turf Clark-Meighen

OTTAWA (UPI) — Conservative leader Joe Clark may be taking a beating from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau in recent polls, but the Tories have no plans to commit "collective suicide" by replacing him at the November convention, according to Conservative Party president Michael Meighen.

"I don't see any organized movement whatsoever within the party to change leaders," Meighen told a TV interview.

"In fact, my own view, of course, is that that would be collective suicide and I think that's the view of the party, so there's no question of that."

Clark's selection as party leader in November, 1975, was greeted with wide public approval. But in subsequent months, his support lagged and in recent months it has nosedived.

Since Quebec's election last Nov. 15 of the pro-independent Parti Quebecois government, Trudeau's popularity has soared at Clark's expense to the point where if an election was held now the Liberals would likely score a landslide.

"Some part of the reason is due to our own mistakes," Meighen said. "But some of the reasons for our downside, of course, are ones beyond our control. It's a combination of things, and I don't think it is a permanent position."

Meighen, who will step aside as Conservative national president in November after three and a half years, said he's certain the 35-year-old Clark "can make a substantial comeback."

"I'm not prepared to say that he can go up to 48 or 49 percent — which was where we were riding only 10 months ago — but things in politics go up and down."

Meighen said the Tories recognize that the party's future depends on how successful they can be in chipping away at the ruling Liberals' power base in Quebec.

"One of the reasons that some people in English-Canada do not vote for the Progressive Conservatives ... is that they say 'well, we don't really think we can entrusted the fate of the country to a party that doesn't have significant influence in the province of Quebec' — or if we were shut out in Ontario it would be the same theory."

He added "I think that is a reason, not a preponderant reason, not THE reason, but a reason for not voting Tory."

Meighen said Canadians must be made to realize they are mistaken in thinking Trudeau is the only national leader capable of keeping Canada united and recognizing the Conservatives can form a strong, alternative government.

He said Trudeau has done a pretty miserable job of selling federalism to Quebecers. "Now he was the man who was going to sell it and the greatest indictment I have of the prime minister is that he didn't use his personal talents, credibility in that area to get around Quebec and sell federalism."

Computer Traces Obscene Phone Caller's Number

TORONTO (CP) — New telephone switching techniques are being introduced in Canada to improve the chances to trace obscene or threatening calls and permit more efficient use of telephones.

A system using computers, called SP-1, or stored program-I, now is available to serve more than one million North American phone lines, most of them in Canada.

It is gradually being phased into the national telephone system and is available in limited areas in most major Canadian cities.

Robert Kenedi, vice-president of switching development at Bell Northern Research Ltd., the research arm of Northern Telecom Ltd. and Bell Canada, said the new system in future will identify the number from which obscene calls are made.

He said advances in the telephone system will overcome limitations of equipment used now by telephone switching offices.

Use of a computer will permit the telephone office controlling the caller's phone to prevent the connection being broken even if the caller hangs up. The computer also will print the caller's telephone number.

Computers have already made possible a range of new services, Kenedi said.

If you live in an area serviced by SP-1 electronic switching offices, you can choose from six services to expand use of your telephone.

If the number you dial is busy, you can hang up and try again a few minutes later by pushing a button. The computer will automatically try the number again.

If an extension in your business office is busy, you can push another button and hang up. Several minutes later, your phone will ring in short bursts.

Pick up the phone and push the button again to inform the computer you still want the number and it will automatically ring the extension again.

These features cost extra for the installation of special switchboards and for the use of each specially equipped phone. The same holds true for other services.

Tone-tone phones are available with 31 buttons which can be programmed to dial frequently used numbers automatically.

A call-forwarding feature permits you to switch incoming calls to another number.

Rights Offering From Bank

MONREAL (CP) — The Bank Canadian National has announced a rights offering of one new share of capital stock for every eight shares held by shareholders of record Sept. 7. The new shares will be offered at $12.50 each.

The offer, announced Friday, expires Oct. 14, but the bank reserves the right to extend the date. A bank spokesman said the new issue will increase the bank's capital from 16 million to 18 million and its reserves from 116 million to 125 million.

The bank reported balance of revenue after taxes of $13.7 million for the nine months ended July 31, compared with $17.8 million for the same period last year. This represents an increase 1.3 per cent.

The number may be permanently established, such as that of your home or answering service, or it may be the number of a temporary location.

Another feature, called call waiting, is used if an important call comes in while you are on the phone.

You hear two quick beeps. To answer the new call, you tap the cradle button once quickly. You can transfer back to the first call by tapping the button again.

The final feature permits the addition of a third party to a conversation, or the transfer of a call to a third party.

By tapping the cradle button, you can put the person to whom you are talking on hold while you dial the number of a third person. If you hang up when the third person answers, the other two persons will be connected and you have transferred the call.

However, if you tap the button again, all three parties will be connected.

Kenedi said these new services were made possible by computers with extremely high standards of reliability, first introduced in 1971. The switching system and its services were developed by Bell

Northern Research at a cost of $30 million.

Large-scale use of the new systems is expected to reduce operating costs of the telephone system by cutting energy, labor and material costs, Kenedi said.

Dissident Arrested

MOSCOW (AP) — Felix Serebrov, 47, an active member of a group formed to protest abuses in Soviet psychiatric hospitals, has been arrested, dissident sources reported. He is being held on charges of allegedly using forged documents.

Through September 1977 British Columbia road signs go metric!

From the beginning of September all provincial highways and most municipal signing will be converted to the metric system as quickly as possible. Signs designating distances in miles will be changed to kilometres (km). Speed zones in miles-per-hour will be changed to kilometres-per-hour (km/h). New metric speed signs will become legal when they are posted. Overpass and bridge clearances will be signed in both feet and metres.

WHY THE RUSH?

This is an important part of Canada's nationwide metric programme to convert all standard measurements to the decimal system — the simple arithmetic method used by most countries in the world.

We have already become accustomed to the change in heat measurement from Fahrenheit to Celsius. Weights will change from ounces to grams; pounds to kilograms. Fluid measurements are already changing from pints, quarts and gallons to standardized litres. Distances will be measured in millimetres (1/1000 metre); centimetres (1/100 metre); metres and kilometres (1000 metres).

It has been found in other countries that phases of metric conversion introduced "cold turkey" gain the quickest acceptance. Those of us who laboured as schoolchildren to convert feet to yards to miles may have a little trouble at first, but metric is being taught in our schools; it is the universal language of scientists and engineers; and, in the near future, will see full usage in the United States. Let's do it now!

DISTANCE

One kilometre (km) is .621 of a mile. One mile is 1.609 kilometres (km). However, the easiest way to visualize a kilometre is as 5/8 of a mile. Here's a simple example of conversion:

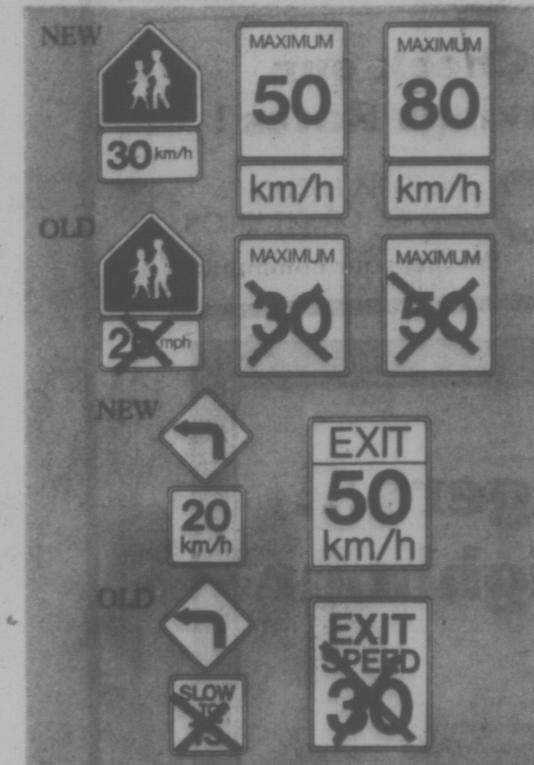

$$\begin{aligned} 100 \text{ km} \times 5 &= \frac{500}{8} = 62.5 \text{ miles} \\ \text{or} \\ 100 \text{ miles} \times 8 &= \frac{800}{5} = 160 \text{ km} \end{aligned}$$

HERE'S HOW DISTANCE SIGNS WILL BE CHANGED:

SPEED

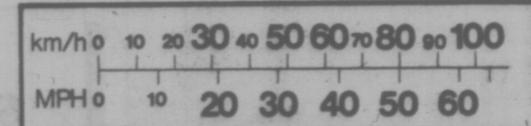

Remember, that as they are posted, new speed zones in kilometres-per-hour (km/h) automatically become legal, even though they may not be a precise conversion from the previous speed limit in mph. Here are some you should become familiar with as soon as possible.

On winding highways we urge extra caution in approaching curves with advisory speed signs converted to km/h. These signs warn you what speed the curve or corner may be safely negotiated at. Take it slowly until you become thoroughly familiar with the metric system.

SPEEDOMETERS

Most 1977 and all 1978 model cars have speedometers and odometers calibrated in km/h and km. Some earlier model cars have speedometers with dual calibrations. If your speedometer indicates only mph, you may find this conversion scale handy. Familiar speeds are in large type.

Always drive at the posted speed. You'll be surprised at how little time you really save when you exceed speed limits.

Thinkmetric

Here are some tips:

1. Think (and talk) kilometre. Make it family fun while driving together.
2. When taking short, familiar trips mentally convert your mileage to kilometres. Remember the 5:8 formula.
3. On longer trips, make sure you have a current "Beautiful British Columbia" road map (published by Tourism British Columbia, Ministry of the Provincial Secretary and Travel Industry) available at tourist information centres. It has conversion tables for most destinations in the province and nearby.
4. Keep our metric folder in your vehicle.

Russians' Love for Automobile Fatal

MOSCOW (UPI) — A lot more Russians are whizzing down the roads at the wheels of their own private automobiles, and dying like flies in the process.

The Moscow daily Leninskoye Znamya complained that during the first six months of this year there were 2,332 traffic accidents in Moscow which killed 302 persons and injured 2,408 others.

In a country where the private automobile was virtually nonexistent only 10 years ago private autos were involved in over 700 of those accidents and accounted for over 800 of the casualties.

The Moscow region deputy chief of internal affairs, N. Sumtsov, aimed particularly sharp criticism at the very popular Soviet-made Zhiguli sedan, a version of the Fiat 124.

Sumtsov blamed 40 per cent of private auto accidents on Zhiguli drivers — charging that drivers of the snappy little sports car have accidents three times more often than owners of the heavier dumper and slower Moskvich and Volga sedans.

"The mass production and wide sales of cars of this type means that a great number of drivers who have had no previous driving experience find themselves sitting at the wheel of the Zhiguli," Sumtsov said.

The result, according to him, is carnage on the orderly streets of the capital.

"Naturally those who are not used to maneuvering and controlling an auto which reacts swiftly and effortlessly do not always manage to make the right moves at the right time," Sumtsov said.

He recommend extra caution on the part of drivers over 45 years old, noting that their reflexes have slowed and that at their age they should not be fascinated with speed and power anyhow.

Sumtsov called for defensive driving and said it would take at least one year for drivers to become accustomed to the Zhiguli.

The Italian Fiat operation installed the Zhiguli plant in the Soviet Union which is now cranking out Zhiguli sedans at an annual rate of 680,000.

Leaders Gather For Treaty

WASHINGTON (WP)

Leaders of almost every nation in the Western Hemisphere are expected to attend the signing here Sept. 7 of the Panama Canal treaties, raising what had once been seen as a purely ceremonial event to a meeting of major political significance.

The visiting heads of state — who include a wide range of leaders from leftist as well as military-ruler countries — will use the occasion for individual talks with President Carter, who has set improved relations with Latin America as a chief goal of his administration.

As of Sunday, 11 heads of state had accepted invitations, including two ruling generals who will be meeting Carter for the first time, Presidents Augusto Pinochet of Chile and Jorge Videla of Argentina.

The presidents of two major democracies, among the few remaining in Latin America, also have accepted: Alfonso Lopez Michelsen of Colombia and Carlos Andres Perez of Venezuela.

COMICS THREATENED BY POWER SHORTAGE

PORLAND, Ore. (AP) — The chief of the Bonneville Power Administration says comic strips and sports sections could be eliminated from newspapers of the future because of lack of paper due to possible power shortages.

Don Hodel told participants in the Western Newspapers Production Conference that if decreasing power supplies in the U.S. Pacific Northwest require mandatory curtailments, food producers and residential power consumers escape the consequences.

"The pulp and paper industry — as the second biggest user of electric energy in the region — and newspapers themselves, can expect to share in the shortage," Hodel said.

Mandatory curtailment would bring dog-eat-dog choices, he added, involving the pulp and paper industry, hospitals, aluminum manufacturers, food producers and residential power consumers.

NASA and Air Force Haggle Over Radio Use

PASADENA, Calif. (WP) — The U.S. Air Force and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration are at war again.

Recently, they clashed over how to share the Mojave Desert. Now they're battling over a portion of the microwave spectrum that NASA says is the key to contacting alien intelligences and which the Air Force wants to jam with navigation signals.

A majority of space scientists now says it believes that there are so many stars with planets likely to be able to support life that the odds are good that there is at least one other civilization near enough to ours to detect, to listen to and possibly engage in a dialogue.

Many of these scientists say they believe nearby beings may be so many millions of years older and more scientifically advanced than we are that they might hold the secret to our technological survival.

"Stars similar to the sun came into existence five billion years before the sun so, if our experience is typical, we may have had intelligent societies on distant planets for thousands or even millions of years," said Dr. Robert E. Edelson, director of the search for extraterrestrial intelligence at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

"People look at our society and say that in 100 years it will all be gone, so if it's possible for technological societies to exist for thousands of years we ought to find out how they did it," he said.

The Air Force has not formed a public opinion on that subject, but it has evolved firm plans to orbit 24 satellites in the next eight years which will allow submarines, surface warships, combat aircraft and even foot soldiers to pinpoint their positions on earth. The Pentagon calls them the Global Positioning Satellite, and say 24 are needed to have four over any spot on earth at all times.

The problem is that the Air Force satellites will broadcast in the same microwave frequencies in which space scientists believe aliens would broadcast if they wanted to be heard. These frequencies range across a band of the microwave spectrum scientists call the "Waterhole." Only in that band do hydrogen and oxygen radiate natural radio signals into space. Combine hydrogen and oxygen and you have water, which is why it is called the Waterhole.

Scientists assume that no life exists without water, that no planet populated by intelligent beings or animals thrives without an atmosphere rich in oxygen and heavy with rain.

They also assume that aliens advanced enough to broadcast messages would be at least as familiar with the Waterhole as we are and would choose it for their frequency for the same reasons we would if we were broadcasting. The Waterhole has been described as the "sign language" in which alien civilizations might best conduct a dialogue.

Several Saw Slayer After Trio Killed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police are still slowly filling in the pieces trying to find the mystery gunman who fatally shot three and probably four Fraser Valley teenagers on the banks of the Fraser River 55 miles east of here more than a month ago.

Working from reports of several witnesses, the path of the slayer has been charted from the scene of the July 18 murders near the Agassiz-Rosedale bridge to the Pacific Centre parking garage in downtown Vancouver.

RCMP Staff Sergeant Dave McLay says the killer apparently gathered his belongings immediately after shooting Evert Den Hertog, Jan Den Hertog and Egbert Menger and drove off in a pickup truck belonging to one of the youths.

He was first seen by two girls as he drove along a back road out of the area.

The next sighting was by a truck driver, about 30 minutes later, on the 401 freeway three miles east of Chilliwack. The truck driver told police the sighting took place at 10 p.m., and said the driver of the truck was going about five miles an hour under the speed limit.

The man was next seen about 11 p.m. in Langley when he stopped to gas up the stolen truck. He was subsequently spotted in Burnaby and at about 11:30 p.m. He was seen in Vancouver.

At 12:40 a.m. the truck was left at the Pacific Centre parking garage and the mysterious driver vanished.

He was described as a man 19 to 35 years old, five-foot-10 to six-one in height, 150 to 175 pounds, with a dark complexion and long brownish shoulder-length hair.

A t the time of the killings he was wearing a red and black checkered shirt or mackinaw, khaki colored pants, running shoes and a dark green hunting cap.

That description was provided by Ed Menger, who

NEW DELHI — When your patient weighs more than 6,000 pounds and you're about to set a broken bone for her in an open-air theatre with hundreds of villagers literally breathing down your neck, it's no easy thing.

But Dr. J. M. Nigam scoffed at the odds although he admitted "no one ever taught me back in college how to set a broken leg with 500-horsepower crane."

Nigam's patient was a 32-year-old cow elephant called Sundarkali, or "Beautiful Blossom."

Sundarkali broke her leg in early June as a result of a fall while peddling ancient Hindu medicine in the countryside around Delhi for a well known Indian pharmaceutical firm.

Sundarkali's māhout (keeper), Sahabuddin Khan, and his wife Jameela tried several native cures which included dousing the compound fracture site with gasoline and crude liquor but there was no relief. The swelling increased and a veterinarian diagnosed gangrene.

A number of other vets suggested the animal be put out of its agony since it appeared a hopeless case. Nothing could help her, they said.

Sundarkali's owner, however, wanted to do his best for the animal, which had done more for boosting his sales than other forms of advertising. An appeal was sent out to everyone from vets and practitioners of ancient Hindu and Moslem medicines to quacks and rustic bone-setters.

Many experts turned up to examine the ailing Sundarkali but none thought she could be saved until Nigam, professor of surgery at Harayanna Agricultural University, had a look at her.

The first thing Nigam did was to prescribe immediate administration of glucose. Fifteen gallons of glucose were injected on the first day along with massive doses of antibiotics. The later bought the patient's temperature down from 105 degrees to 98 degree, the normal temperature of elephants.

Laborers already had dug a grave near the helpless Sun-darkali thinking she would have to be shot dead but Nigam had the grave closed.

"I don't want my patient to lie by a waiting grave. I am going to save her," Nigam vowed.

Next day, "Operation Sundarkali" continued with Nigam trimming the sharp edges of broken bones that were gnawing at her flesh.

The gaping, 15-inch-deep wound was full of maggots and chunks of decaying flesh had to be scooped out by hand. "Even the bone marrow had been infected," Nigam said.

The next step was to set the bone, which couldn't be done manually.

The Indian army offered to help and sent a mobile crane to the site — a marshy river bed on the banks of the Jamuna River.

As hundreds of villagers looked on, Sundarkali's broken leg was stretched and pulled by the crane while Nigam and four assisting vets set the fractured bone. Bemused with the help of 20 pounds of sedatives and pain-killing drugs, Sundarkali offered little resistance.

To comfort her, the māhout's wife fed Sundarkali candy and sugarcane leaves and wept as she caressed the and wept as she caressed the elephant's trunk.

"I feel as if my own daughter is dying," Jameela said.

Sundarkali's broken leg was finally set and plastered. In the process, Nigam used several steel pins and clamps to hold the bones together.

"I won't say she (Sundarkali) is out of the woods but I guess she has got a new lease on life. Maybe she will limp a bit, but it seems she will live," Nigam said at the time. That was two months ago.

RED PSYCHIATRIC ABUSE DENOUNCED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The World Federation for Mental Health has decided to officially denounce psychiatric abuse in the Soviet Union and other countries that incarcerate political dissidents in mental hospitals.

In resolutions passed by the executive board during the weekend, the WFMH will:

— Ask the government of the USSR "for the immediate release of all dissidents who have been inappropriately hospitalized."

— Call upon all mental health professionals to make sure the welfare of their patients comes before any other consideration.

— "Call upon the World Psychiatric Association to give that firm leadership which will ensure the highest standards of psychiatric practices will be maintained throughout the world."

About 2,000 delegates from 44 countries attended the WFMH international congress here last week.

Dr. Norman Hirt, a Vancouver psychiatrist who has compiled information on psychiatric abuse in the Soviet Union and elsewhere said in an interview the federation's executive are also asking the USSR to immediately release Dr. Semyon Gluzman.

Hirt said Gluzman "had the courage to denounce psychiatric malpractices in the USSR and is now serving his sixth year in a Soviet labor camp."

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government believes that basic civil rights, including education, must be entrenched in a new constitution, Justice Minister Ron Basford told the Canadian Bar Association today.

"The provinces' jurisdiction in education as in property and civil rights does not and should not preclude government entrenching in the constitution these basic rights, a measure which the national government feels must be taken," Basford said in an opening speech to convention delegates.

The speech came three days after Quebec passed a language bill restricting the rights of parents to have children educated in English.

"The developing strains on Confederation have now reached the crisis point," Basford said. But he added that this provided an opportunity to strengthen the country and he set out five values he said are necessary to restore national unity.

Huntington at a federal challenge to any such restrictions, Basford said there already are Supreme Court of Canada Judgments which uphold the free movement of goods across provincial boundaries. The free movement people is every bit as essential to the federation, he said.

The other four values Basford listed as essential were: French and English linguistic rights; inclusion of a charter of fundamental rights and freedoms in the constitution; reallocation of government responsibilities to provide the best service to the people and strengthen costs and benefits to the federation.

Basford urged the association's 20,000 members to promote linguistic educational rights in French and English in their own provinces.

federalist content in any campaign preceding a referendum on Quebec separation from Canada.

"Canadian citizenship, if it is to mean anything, cannot suffer geographical limitations in issues that go to the very core of nationhood."

"No premier will implement equal rights in education without public support—support within his province, not some other," Basford said. "Unless provincial publics indicate their willingness to develop school facilities in both official languages where warranted, the job will not get done."

U.K. Press 'Hysterical' At Kennedy's Release

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the Royal Ulster Constabulary (RUC) in Belfast on Sunday would neither confirm nor deny reports that it sent fingerprints of suspected Irish Republican Army terrorist James McCann to the RCMP.

"There could well be a mixup here, but I wouldn't comment," an RUC spokesman said in a telephone interview from Vancouver.

The spokesman said the bureau would check today to see if the fingerprints were sent to RCMP who allege that James Kennedy, released Friday on bail pending an appeal to the Immigration Appeal Board for refugee status that would override a July 14 deportation order against him, is really McCann.

"We never said this man Kennedy was McCann in the first place," the RUC spokesman said.

Earlier reports quoted an RUC spokesman saying the fingerprints had been sent three months ago and that if the man has been freed it seems likely that the fingerprints did not match.

In July, the RCMP said it had received fingerprints from New Scotland Yard in London that matched two sets of Kennedy prints.

"Now we hear the material came from the Royal Ulster Constabulary," Kennedy said Sunday. "It's unbelievable."

Kennedy said he phoned friends in Ireland who told him the British press has reacted hysterically to his release.

"I'm described as the most wanted man in the western world," he said. "And yet the Northern Ireland police—the strongest opponent of Irish unity—make a statement that clears me."

The media reports there have left me wide open to attacks from kooks."

The 37-year-old Irish immigrant said after his release Friday that the RCMP are working overseas in collaboration with British intelligence forces in the suppression of Irish nationalist groups.

Kennedy said during his bail hearing that he belonged to the Sinn Fein provisional, a political organization dedicated to the reunification of Ireland, but never to the IRA.

Immigration authorities have said that Kennedy is McCann and is wanted for terrorist activities in Ireland, Britain and Europe.

His lawyer, John Taylor, told the bail hearing there are no charges against Kennedy in Canada or Ireland and that no countries have shown interest in extraditing him.

One condition of Kennedy's release was that he report to immigration authorities monthly.

No date has been set for the Immigration Appeal Board hearing.

Small Office, but a Big Job

MRS. PHIPPS . . . questions never end

It's a small office by any standard you'd like to name. Desk, bookcase, a couple of chairs, several wall boards covered with printed pamphlets and one or two potted plants high on a wall.

A cubby-hole, some would call it.

Yet, it is in that cramped space, off a corridor in the basement at Saanich Health and Welfare Centre, that an efficient nutritional program and counselling service is maintained.

Irene Phipps is the nutritionist in charge. Fact is, she's the whole staff of the Capital Regional District Community Health Service.

A service that covers Langford, Colwood, Sooke, Port Renfrew, the Saanich Peninsula and some of the larger Gulf Islands.

In that widespread area there are 10 health offices that Mrs. Phipps visits, on average, once a month.

She travels by automobile and, where necessary, by ferry.

"I'm lucky," she says, "because most of that work is on a daily basis and I can get home practically every night."

In her small office she conducts a spirited telephone answering service, arranges prenatal nutritional classes for prospective parents and acts as a resource person when needed by public health or home care nurses.

She is available for some counselling on a one-to-one basis in private homes, "when there is time" and is on "stand-by" for doctors who need a resource person to counsel certain patients.

"Patients who require normal nutritional counselling rather than therapeutic," is the way she puts it.

Mrs. Phipps was named to her present position, and given a more or less free hand to plan and organize programs, when this regional district community health service was organized, about three years ago.

One of the first projects was the Early Bird Pre-Natal Talks on nutrition, a program she continues today with increasing success.

Another successful part of her work is the telephone answering service.

Questions come in by the dozens, days after day, and from all age groups, starting with young mothers anxious about infants' and children's diets to senior citizens in need of advice about proper foods.

"I answer every question," Irene Phipps says, "either by giving the proper information myself or passing the person on to someone who can give the answers."

It's a two-way street, she explains. "In answering all these questions, I'm establishing a definite contact with the community and, in this work, community contact is very important."

Acting as a resource person also brings many rewarding moments.

"Mothers who come to the well baby and home care clinics in this building know the kind of advice I can give."

"Nurses in charge of those clinics call on me if I'm needed. Sometimes it's to answer group questions. Another time it could be an individual query that I can take in my office; perhaps by appointment."

On occasions, Irene Phipps meets and talks to groups, arranged by the provincial human resources office, anxious to get the best food value for their dollars.

"I'd like to get out a pamphlet on that sort of thing," she tells you, "it's the kind of information that is useful to everyone."

She also accepts other speaking engagements, especially during the fall and winter months.

"Right from the start I've been going out to pre-school and day care parents' groups and to weight-watchers gatherings," she says, "and I believe that people in those groups are far more aware of

Two in particular — the revised Canada Food Guide and the British Columbia Snacks for Good Nutrition and Dental Health, are very popular.

There is also a popular Tips in Your Favor arranged and coordinated by Mrs. Phipps herself.

It's mainly for weight-watchers and it presents 10 pithy little paragraphs on goals, calories, plateaus, binges, appetite control, dining out and meal patterns, among other things.

"I'd like to do more of that sort of work," she says.

Looking ahead she dreams of "some day" expanding her present overall program. She'd like to increase the prenatal work and branch out with nutrition talks in the schools and senior citizen groups.

"There is an increasing need for our type of information," she says, "also need for many more programs in the nutrition field."

"They could all be included in the program, if I had even one more person to help."

Mrs. Phipps trained as a dietitian and took her B.Sc. degree in home economics (specializing in nutrition) at University of Saskatchewan.

She came to Victoria for her internship at Royal Jubilee Hospital and worked in the dietetics department of that hospital for nearly three years, before accepting her present position.

Postscript — Going back to those pamphlets on good nutrition that go out from the Phipps' office, especially the revised Canada Food Guide, the British Columbia Snacks for Good Nutrition and Dental Health and the Phipps Tips in Your Favor.

They are available, free of charge, to anyone who is interested. Just contact Irene Phipps at the Saanich Health and Welfare Centre. She'll send them on to you.

Tender Loving Care For Problem Hair

Ask Jennifer

By JENNIFER ANDERSON

Nothing is too good for your hair, and sometimes nothing is exactly what you need to correct a lot of the problems that occur with ever-increasing frequency to hair today. Here are some examples:

DEAR JENNIFER: Do I have hair problems? Fine, split ends, frizz, broken hair strands — you name it. I've got it. Is there any way I can make my hair stronger? — Linda L., Seattle.

Only the most gentle care can make your hair any better. And perhaps nothing? You already know exactly what to do, then reward may not interfere, and even may help, McCullers said.

Intrinsic interest is found in those activities you are motivated to do without any observable payoff attached to them. It's what you do for the fun of it, for its own joy, for its own sake."

What's left? You ask. Only a good haircut every six weeks and mild shampoo when necessary and a weekly conditioning with a product on the market. Or make your own concoction, such as castor oil or olive oil. Apply to the hair and wrap it up in a steamy towel. Leave it on for 20 minutes, then shampoo it out. A trick for shampooing out oil is to apply shampoo directly to your hair without using water first. Rub it in and then add the water.

So you've found the best deal for a good used car and have checked it for rust, tire tread, upholstery, and a smooth-running motor. Well, don't forget the brakes. Have the brake system inspected and ask for a rough estimate on the mileage left on the brake linings and pads. Then you'll know when to have you solve this problem? — Sandra K., Chicago.

New York model Lorrie Woods has the same problem. Here's how she solves it:

—Fill a small powder shaker bottle with cornstarch. Sprinkle a little in the palm of your hand and fluff it lightly through the front of your hair.

Brush the bangs lightly.

It works. It's also something you can pack along in your evening bag and do in the ladies' room when you touch up your make-up.

them inspected again before serious trouble and an expensive replacement is necessary.

End-of-season sales are the best time to pick up some bargains in future fits for relatives and friends who live in warmer climates year around. But then, who wouldn't enjoy opening a gift to find a pretty patio skirt or beach jacket even when there's snow on the ground?

How quiet it is when an old quilter is replaced and you drive away knowing that your new one has a "lifetime" guarantee. Just remember that the guarantee doesn't usually include the tail pipe, which may have only a limited guarantee or none at all.

month or so before a plant appears — germination can take up to three months, so be patient.

When the first sprout appears, cover the pit itself with good indoor soil to insure sufficient moisture for the roots closest to the surface. Avocado plants need frequent pinching back. They grow quickly and will require transplanting from time to time. Beautiful plants are easily grown indoors or out, but growing the delicious fruit is best left to the professional. Eat plenty of avocados — they are delicious, versatile in preparation and healthy. If you have a surplus of seeds, you might try using one for giving invigorating foot massages!

Avocados, also known as alligator pears, became popular in this country when modern transportation made them available to everyone living in areas other than the tropics of Central and South America.

For the most part, the avocado pit (or seed) germinates readily. It's best to pick a very ripe avocado for sprouting. If the pit has already sprouted, as is sometimes the case in very ripe fruit, plant it immediately after rinsing in warm water. If the pit appears as a tight brown skinned nut, rinse it in tepid water, pat it dry with a soft towel and let it sit in a warm dry spot for a day or two. When dried, peel off the skin.

Pits can also be grown in water with toothpicks stuck in the sides to hold it securely. But the best way is to plant the pit directly in the pot of soil. To speed germination, use a sharp single-edge razor blade and cut a thin sliver off tip and base of seed — no more than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thick. Plant the pit fat end down, buried two-thirds into the soil so tip is well exposed. Part of pit must have access to light, otherwise no plant. Water thoroughly with warm water mixed with vitamin-hormone. Invert a clear plastic cup over the pit to provide humidity. Usually, it will be a

Bed relates to wall design by picking up colors from framed fabric

Fabric Textures A Blank Wall

By PAULINE GRAVES

A new home, not custom built, usually comes with few interior architectural details except for those that are major and eye catching, such as the highly touted cathedral ceilings. Although it might seem an oversight by the builder, actually this works to the buyer's advantage. He can add moldings and shelves and whatever suits his taste and his furniture, without having to eliminate what some previous owner has fancied.

An example of interesting additions to a blank wall is shown here. And it demonstrates an imaginative use of materials, fabric, molding and 2"x4"s. Fabric on a wall does not rate headlines as a fresh, new idea, but the manner in which this was applied, does. The stylized pattern, consisting of 26-inch wide panels featuring two designs, has the appearance of being stenciled on the wall. Instead, the panels were applied directly to the wall, 12-inches from the bed, behind the bedside cabinets, and edged with 2-inch molding.

Two 2"x4"s, placed next to the bed on each side, and 10-inches away from the panels, repeat and emphasize their strong vertical lines. Instead of a picture or a hanging above the bed, the fabric was utilized again, one of the design squares mounted and framed and placed on the wall. Too small to be in scale with the other wall elements, the square was made to fit by surrounding it with another frame, of 2"x4"s, and leaving 9-inches of wall space between them. Interior design was by Carole Eichens.

STORK VS. PLOW, DEADLY RACE ON

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz says the world's population must be limited to 7 billion, "intelligently or harshly," predicting inevitable global warfare if food production does not increase faster to meet population growth.

Little help can be expected from the U.S. Congress, which is too ignorant of farming to do anything but "mess up" the job, he added.

"Our No. 1 job is the race between the stork and the plow," Butz said Friday, speaking to a group of financial securities analysts.

SYRUP-PRESERVED GRAPEFRUIT PEEL

4 medium or large grapefruits
3 cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup lemon juice
¾ cup short slivers of candied ginger, not packed down
Two 3-inch cinnamon sticks
16 whole cloves tied in a cheesecloth bag.
Wash and dry grapefruit. On each, with a small, sharp knife make 4 equidistant lengthwise cuts, from stem to bottom, through entire peel. With a butter knife, gently loosen peel at stem ends. With your fingers, pull off the sections of peel; there will be 16 in all. Refrigerate the remaining grapefruit and use for compotes and/or salads.

In a large saucepan bring the sections of peel, covered with water, to a boil; simmer 20 minutes; drain. With a sturdy metal spoon scrape off all the inner white membrane so only the thin yellow rind is left. Cover the rind sections with water, bring to a boil and simmer until rind is tender — about 20 minutes. Drain. Cut rind in pieces, making as many of them as you can about ½-inch wide and about 2 inches long. The size helps give this preserve great appeal.

Into the large, clean saucepan turn the sugar, salt, 1½ cups water, the lemon juice, ginger, cinnamon sticks and clove bag. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves. Add prepared rind and bring to a boil; simmer until syrup reaches 220 degrees on a candy thermometer — about 35 minutes. Remove cinnamon sticks and clove bag. Off heat, at once ladle into 1-pint, wide-mouth canning jars to within ½-inch of rim. Seal. Label and store in a cool place.

Makes three 8-ounce jars.

Ways to use Syrup-Preserved Grapefruit Peel:

Top grapefruit halves with some of it and serve as dessert.

Use it as a topping for a compote of sliced oranges and bananas.

Spoon some of it into the cavities of home-style canned peaches or poached fresh pear halves.

Serve it with plain buttered or cinnamon toast; or with toasted English muffins or crumpets or hot biscuits.

'Cleaning Up' with Dial-a-Mop

SEATTLE (AP) — Are you tired of walking on the peanut shells from your husband's poker game? Does the endless drudgery of housework get you down?

Dial-A-Mop may be the answer.

For the price of $25 to $31, a Dial-A-Mop team will scour your humble cottage or palatial mansion with satisfaction guaranteed.

Mary Johnson formed Dial-A-Mop several years ago after her job in social work ended. She said business is booming — with just one small problem.

"Generally my home has been a disaster area. I'm about ready to have someone come in to do the bathroom and the laundry."

Mrs. Johnson cleaned house to put herself through college while earning a social service degree. After she graduated, she swore she'd never clean another person's home.

But the money for social service workers dried up and she found herself unemployed. She didn't want an office job, didn't want to go back to school.

"Then I realized I knew a whole lot about cleaning houses," she said, and Dial-A-Mop was born.

The first six months were a little shaky as Ms. Johnson had to learn about cleaning products, how to deal with clients and how to set up a business with very little money.

Now, she has three women working for her and owns most of the necessary basic equipment. She still cleans houses herself, but hopes to be strictly a supervisor soon.

Ms. Johnson's clients include mothers with young children, elderly persons who can't push a vacuum and couples in which both partners work at demanding jobs and have little time for house cleaning.

More to Tape Than Cellophane

By A. J. HAND
(c) 1977, Popular Science

Mention tape and the first thing that springs into most minds is that old standby, clear cellophane tape. It's one of the originals, and it finds lots of uses around the home.

But there are literally hundreds of different tapes on the market today, many of them just as useful as clear cellophane. Here are a few:

Masking tape — You probably know about ordinary masking tape, the key to cutting a sharp line when you paint. But did you know there are special masking tapes for painting decorative stripes? They are formed of multiple strips that peel off the roll, spaced to automatically give you the stripe width you want.

Electrical tape — This black vinyl tape is designed especially to insulate electrical connections, but it has a lot of other applications. I use it to fasten spinning reels to my fishing rods and eliminate the need for a reel seat. Wrap it around a leaky garden hose for a quick repair (or use hose repair tape which is the same thing colored green). You can use it to bind ropes and prevent traying. There are even special electrical tapes that shrink when you heat them to provide super-tight insulation on electrical joints and splices.

Strapping tape — This fiberglass-reinforced plastic tape is extremely strong. A half-inch-wide strip can lift over 100 pounds without breaking. Use it whenever you want a strong material to bind things together. A good, tight spiral wrap with this stuff will even do a good job of repairing a broken shovel or rake handle. And it's a sure fire way to make sure an old, overuffed suitcase won't pop open on your next airline flight. Just wrap a couple of strips all the way around the case after packing.

Duct tape — Wrap this stuff around the joints in your furnace ducts to prevent air leaks and save on heating bills.

Weatherstripping tape — Here's a plastic foam with adhesive on one side that makes short work of weatherstripping doors and windows.

Teflon tape — This one is used for plumbing joints. You wrap it around the male portion of a threaded joint before screwing the parts together. It makes a watertight seal and does away with messy pipe dope.

Rubber grip tape — Wrap a length of this stuff around a hammer handle and it gives you a better grip with great shock-absorbing characteristics. Good for bat handles and bike handlebars, too.

Reflective tape — Visibility at night is the goal of this tape. Use it on bikes, trailers, helmets, and so on. It is also available in pre-cut letters and numbers for labeling mail boxes or making signs. Cloth varieties can be sewn to clothing for safety when jogging, walking or bicycling after dark.

DEAR ABBY: Yours is to give up her social status, financial security and retirement income because of you. However, her discovery will probably terminate his affair with you, so be prepared to get some new clothes, circulate and find another man whose wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin), and hasn't slept with him for 10 years. Sign me ... —HIS WIFE

DEAR ABBY: I'm a fellow who has let my hair grow down to my shoulders. Some people call me "miss." How can I let them know I am a man? — MANNY

DEAR MANNY: Grow a beard.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter goes around with a girl who brags about all the stuff she has shoplifted from stores. (She's taken jewelry, cosmetics, records and clothes.)

This girl is pretty and comes from a very nice family and her parents can buy her anything she wants. She is a junior in high school, Abby.

Never depend on him in times of personal crisis. Don't believe him when he tells you that his wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin), and she hasn't slept with him in 10 years.

Don't expect his wife to divorce him if she catches him. She knows that you aren't his first affair and won't be his last. Also, she's not about him in 10 years.

Should I tell her mother? I'm afraid she will get caught and hurt her parents or herself if this continues. No name or town, please.—MRS. X

DEAR MRS. X: Of course you should tell her mother. If she were your daughter, wouldn't YOU want to know?

A Married Lover

Delivers Little

wheels

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE: When I bought my Dart Swinger new in 1975, I had the dealer take off the factory bias-ply tires and replace them with radials. The radials have always had a wobble in them, making the front end and steering wheel shake back and forth. This has gotten worse lately. The Dodge people say it's the tire manufacturer's fault, and the tire people say it's the car's suspension that's set up wrong. The tires now have 9,000 miles on them. What should I do? — WOBBLY.

DEAR WOBBLY: Yours is a common complaint, and it's called "radial wobble." Lots of radials do it, especially at lower speeds. It's caused by crooked belting. I frankly can't tell you what to do, though. Adjustments seem to be very hard to get lately, because most tiremakers dropped their warranties at the beginning of this year.

DEAR MIKE: My 1969 Rambler American makes a whistling sound from the engine when I let off the gas pedal about 40 mph. I've put on a new carburetor and tightened hoses, etc. What's causing this whistle? — WHISTLING BILLY

DEAR BILLY: It's a vacuum leak, most likely caused by a tiny crack in the gasket between the carburetor and intake manifold. It could also be due to a casting crack or a split in one of your vacuum hoses.

DEAR MIKE: Why is low gear in my 1975 Mercury Monarch (with three-speed manual transmission) so hard to shift into most of the time?

The car has been this way since new. Two dealers haven't been able to cure the problem. — SHIFTLESS

DEAR SHIFTLESS: If

you'd said both low and reverse are hard to get into, I'd suspect internal transmission problems. But since it's only low gear, your linkage seems so forth. Can you offer any suggestions? — WON'T CRANK.

DEAR CRANK: Yes, check your seatbelt interlock under your front seat. I suspect something's crossed up in the wiring.

Bombers Aiming For Presley Grave?

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Two persons carrying explosives were arrested today in the cemetery where the body of Elvis Presley is entombed in a marble mausoleum, police said.

Police Capt. F. J. Acers said the arrests at 12:30 a.m. at the rear of the mausoleum in Forest Hill Cemetery came after "there was a report" of a plot to steal Presley's body.

A security guard at the midtown cemetery said three city police officers arrived at 8 p.m. Sunday and instructed the cemetery guards to watch the front gate while they guarded the mausoleum, which is located a mile down a winding road from the entrance.

A cemetery employee said three persons apparently entered the cemetery grounds after closing hours at dusk and planned to "blast in" to the mausoleum.

The third suspect was being sought.

Meanwhile, promoters for Presley, theatre owners and lawyers must now tackle a problem they rarely encounter — what to do with about $600,000 in concert tickets adoring fans refuse to give up.

5,000-Mile Paddle Ends 5 Miles Short

PORLAND, Ore. — Stan Sroka, 24, of Springfield, Massachusetts, says he will never paddle across the United States in a canoe again. Sroka ended his five-thousand-mile journey on 22 different river systems in Portland last month, paddling his freight train canoe, baggage and all.

"I'm done paddling," he said, deciding it was not worth continuing another five miles downstream and then entering the Willamette River into Portland proper. Sroka said he was always able to hitchhike with his 19-foot canoe and more than 200 pounds of gear from the headwaters of one river system to another. One time, faced with a long stay on a strip of the Missouri River that was too swift for one man to paddle, he said he jumped a freight train and the perpetrator of my schedule. I feel 50."

CHATHAM, Ill. — Bob Flemming, 24, has done it again — proved that he can travel farther than anyone else in Illinois. The Taylorville, Ill., coal mine engineer set a world record by throwing a cow chip 198-feet, 1-inch in the second annual Illinois Cow Chip Throwing Championship. That beat the old mark of 185 feet set just last week by Kale Hindman of Russell Spring, Kan. The chips, measuring six inches across, were obtained from a local farmer and then dried in a barn.

PAID TO SIP

WASHINGTON — Even an old tea-sipper like Robert H. Dick admits it sounds a bit silly to pay people to sit around and sip tea.

So he understands, without enthusiasm, why Richard Nixon and President Jimmy Carter went after his soap.

Dick is in charge of the government's Tea Examiner's Office in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Nixon singled out the tea of fine 1970 as an example of waste in government, and dismissed Dick as the nation's No. 1 tea sipper. A month later, when the issues were clarified, Dick was back at his cups.

As a tea examiner, Dick makes sure importers are keeping to standard by sipping his way through up to 150 cups a day. "I taste it and spit it out," he said.

Acclaimed Moscow Circus To Tour Canadian Cities

Ton and Winnipeg before moving on to seven U.S. cities.

The tour is being presented in Canada by the Montreal Forum and the Toronto Impresario, Sergei Sawchyn.

Sawchyn spent eight weeks in Russia selecting acts for the tour in consultation with Gees-circus, the state agency administering the 127 circuses now employing some 8,000 people in the Soviet Union.

There are two major curcuses in Moscow, exchanging acts with others spread across the Soviet Union. When shows are sent abroad they all appear under the name of the Moscow Circus, in the same way as ballet or opera stars of the Bolshoi, Moscow's major opera house.

The show touring Canada and the U.S. was assembled in Moscow. The animals, costumes and stage properties are on a four-week voyage from Murmansk.

Yuri Kukachev, 28, the newest clown in the tradition of Oleg Popov, will make his Western debut on the tour.

In addition to his own physical feats, Kukachev has trained ordinary house cats to pull his wagon and turn cart-wheels.

U.S. TV Network Profits Rise 60%

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. television broadcasting industry recorded a 60.3-percent increase in profits in 1976 compared with 1975, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) reported Sunday.

Pre-tax profits rose to $1.25 billion compared with $780.3 million in 1975.

It was a dramatic rebound from the recession of the previous year when the rise in profits was slowed to 5.7 percent. The biggest jump before 1976 reported by the FCC was 41.9 percent in 1972 following a dismal 1970-71 period.

The three commercial networks — ABC, CBS and NBC — enjoyed a 41.8-percent increase in profits, not quite as spectacular as the 70.7-percent increase reported by the 686 non-network-owned stations. The 15 network-owned and -operated stations had a 50.4-percent increase.

Advertising expenditures for TV broadcasting, as reported to the FCC, were $6.03 billion in 1976, up 27.7 percent from 1975. This included $982 million in agency commissions, but does not include the cost of commercials or programs supplied by advertisers.

The industry reported revenues of almost $5.2 billion, up 27 percent from 1975. This included gross advertising revenues plus all other broadcast revenues, minus commissions. Expenses increased by 19.1 percent.

Shuttle Uplifts Space Program

By HOWARD BENEDICT
WASHINGTON, (AP) —

Eyed by the successful first free flight of the space shuttle Enterprise, the U.S. space program once again appears healthy and vigorous.

The Enterprise carries the promise of cheaper, far easier access to space and eventually, perhaps, its colonization.

Unlike the scientific quests of most of the 30 U.S. manned space flights to date, those in this new era of the spaceplane will emphasize human needs and economic benefits.

That's the message being given by President Carter as he prepares a response to the first National Aeronautics and Space Administration budget to come before Congress.

The prospect of the shuttle has restored some of the old bounces to NASA, which has not sent anyone into space in the last two years.

Memories of the glory days of Mercury, Gemini, Apollo and Skylab were revived Aug. 12 when the Enterprise flew for five minutes after being ejected from the back of a Boeing 747 over Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

The two astronauts aboard, Fred Haise and Gordon Fulller, guided their 75-ton craft to a perfect landing on a dry desert lake, duplicating maneuvers to be performed when later shuttles return to an earth landing strip from orbit.

Much remains to be done before the United States sends a fleet of these Buck Rogers-style vehicles shuttling between earth and orbit.

More drop tests from the Boeing jumbo jet are scheduled to check various flying characteristics of the shuttle. But barring major difficulty, John Yardey, NASA associate administrator for space flight, said the first shuttle should be on a Cape Canaveral, Fla., launching pad in March, 1979.

That probably will be only a two-day flight, with two astronauts aboard. It would be the first of six orbital test flights planned for the craft that year. To perfect landing techniques, the first four are to land on the desert expanses near Edwards. After that, landings will be on a 15,000-foot runway that has been built near the launch site at Cape Canaveral.

After a flight, a shuttle fleet will be refurbished for another launching, an operation expected to take two weeks or less. NASA says each of the projected five shuttles should be able to make 100 or more round trips into orbit. Yardey said he sees no reason why each can't fly as many as 500 times.

The shuttles are to begin operating for real in 1980—doing things manned space vehicles have never tried before.

They will be used to position satellites in orbit for communications, navigation, weather forecasting, military reconnaissance and scientific research. The crewmen—up to seven on a mission—will be able to repair an ailing satellite, bring it back for maintenance, cutting costs and considerably extending the lives of many payloads.

With the capacity of hauling up to 65,000 pounds, these spaceplanes, once in orbit, also will launch probes bound for other planets. And they will carry up a small station called Spacelab, being developed by a consortium of 11 Western European countries. Spacelab also will be capable of repeated round trips into orbit, perhaps as many as 50.

Eventually, the shuttle fleet may ferry people and parts for the construction of solar space stations, space factories, moon bases and habitats for colonies far beyond earth.

A recent NASA-sponsored study concluded that a space settlement for 10,000 people could be a reality 20 years after a decision to build it.

Yardey said a go-ahead for such a colony would be based not on technology, but on social and political reasoning. He said the project is already feasible.

"Before we make that commitment we would have to have a better understanding of why we want to colonize space," said NASA administrator Robert Frosch.

Yardey said that during an early shuttle flight, NASA hopes to orbit a 25-kilowatt, solar-powered generator, to which the spaceplanes could dock, drawing electricity to extend their orbital lifetime to 60 to 90 days. For later, there is a plan to orbit a 200-kilowatt unit to permit attachment of Spacelabs or shuttles for missions that could last six months or more.

Yardey said the longer stays would enable construction crews to build space platforms, which could be the foundations for large space stations.

NASA is forecasting 560 separate shuttle missions between 1980 and 1991, averaging about 60 annually—or more than one a week. By then, the types of rockets now used to launch satellites no longer will be built.

The space agency, which has already booked all its flights for the shuttle's first two years once regular trips begin, expects to generate more business as potential customers gain confidence.

Western Union, Telesat Canada, Intelsat and Satellite Business Systems, are expected to sign contracts for the launching of commercial communications satellites. Geosat Committee Inc., a group of nearly 100 U.S. corporations, including Exxon and Kerr-McGee Oil, has been formed to work closely with NASA on industry needs, such as geological surveys.

Pharmaceutical and high technology firms hope to take advantage of weightless orbiting lab conditions to simplify the manufacture of many items, from exotic enzymes to perfect ball bearings and single-crystal semiconductors.

Large space factories could evolve from this early research and perhaps open up the next industrial revolution, say some business analysts.

Seaweed Benefits Lauded

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — Seaweed, the lowly plant that tangles the lines of fishermen, can provide the world with a new source of fuel and new cures for diseases, according to experts attending a week-long symposium.

Chemicals recently discovered in red seaweed, for example, may provide drugs for treatment of viral infections and other diseases that have not responded to drugs produced from land plants and animals, according to chemist William Fenical of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

"Once we learn the molecular structure and effect of sea pharmaceuticals, then manufacturers can synthetically reproduce them," Fenical said.

Fenical was one of 750 experts from 72 countries attending the symposium at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

Arnold Bryce of the General Electric Co. said GE will experiment with seaweed as a new source of fuel.

He said in the spring, the company will plant a one-quarter acre bed of kelp — a form of seaweed — in the ocean four miles off the Southern California coast by Dana Point.

The kelp will be "mowed like grass" and will be converted into methane gas for household and industrial use.

GE will be managing the experimental program for the American Gas Association.

Merger Stalled but Churches 'Unified'

CALGARY (CP) — Formal union between Canada's two largest Protestant denominations may have been stalled but that does not mean the churches must not work together, leaders of both the United Church of Canada and Anglican Church of Canada say.

In an interview Sunday on the CBC-FM radio program

Sunday Magazine, Rt. Rev. George Tuttle, moderator of the United Church, and Most Rev. E. W. Scott, primate of the Anglican Church, said both churches are working together although formal talks of union ended in 1975.

"We haven't been discussing church union in any organic sense," Tuttle, elected chief executive officer of the two-million-member United Church said. The Anglican Church has about 1.3 million members.

"We've been talking more about our relationships to other bodies, particularly to the Anglican body, because for a long time we had such conversations on the question of union that we were not being raised, that often feels like an attack."

He said both he and Scott represent agencies that will be working together, thinking together, "and are far more unified than the average person on the street realizes."

Referring to a move by both churches to become more responsible for social comment, Scott said many business people felt they were attacked by and advise

some of the church's statements on northern development and South Africa.

"When you have had a long period when there has been little said about these kinds of issues and some of them start being raised, that often feels like an attack."

"I don't think the church has ever meant it in terms of attack. Rather we're raising issues that have to be looked at."

Tuttle said both he and Scott represent agencies that will be working together, thinking together, "and are far more unified than the average person on the street realizes."

Asked what the churches can do to foster national unity, Scott said one of the things that should be done is to try to get the rest of Canada to give some valid reasons to Quebecers as to why their provinces should remain within Confederation.

The whole question has changed during the last five years because there is a growing group in Quebec who feel they could go it alone, he said.

"What the French people want is not the relevant question. The relevant question is what can the rest of Canada offer to Quebec that would persuade them to stay in some pattern of confederation. So I think that puts a responsibility on those of us who have contact with the rest of Canada to be sensitive to some of the feelings, attitudes and history of the French people."

Tuttle said his church must be careful what it says on the issue because while the United is a national church, it cannot claim to be "all that."

"We are deeply dedicated to national unity so we do what we can."

The United Church has appointed a national officer, a French-speaking person, who will pay particular attention to the subject, he said.

Kiss your landlord goodbye.

1366...
We believe you should own, not rent

Every time you pay the rent you're saying goodbye to hundreds of dollars. You'll never see those hard-earned dollars again. Why do that any longer? Pay even monthly payment could be building equity for you in your own apartment home? Not only could your dollars be working for you at 1366, but the payments could be no larger than the rent you're paying now, simply signing away each month.

1366...
So you don't have a million in the bank

Relax. You don't need much capital. You don't need to touch your life savings. If you want to live at 1366 we'll help you with creative and sensible financial guidance, tailored to your needs. We can help you make your dreams come true.

Apartment homes at 1366 are available for payments as small as $250.00 per month. Generous terms and special considerations are available to you if you qualify for our special 9% mortgage. Come talk with us so we can give you all the good financial news.

1366...

in children

Welcome to the only building in Victoria with child care facilities on the premises! We know that working parents and single parents really need available child care — during the work day and for that evening out. Well, our child care isn't half a mile away or across town. It's right in the building. And outside there's a playground. At 1366, it's all right there for children.

Our building wasn't designed by a cookie-cutter. You'll have a chance to view 2 and 3-bedroom suites. Most have balconies. Some have garden plots. Some have private roof gardens.

You'll find suites on one floor. Others are up-and-down suites, there are a number of different floorplans to choose from. And, instead of being tucked away like dungeons, all the dining rooms are near natural light.

East Indians Made Scapegoats

VANCOUVER (CP) — East Indians and other ethnic minorities are being made scapegoats for the economic crisis in Canada, says a spokesman for the East Indian Benevolent Association.

Vancouver dentist Dr. Shanti Khanna said physical attacks on East Indians in Vancouver and Toronto are only the more blatant aspect of a historic pattern of discrimination against recently-arrived immigrant groups.

The same thing happened to the Chinese in their day," said Khanna in a weekend interview at the first Canada-wide symposium of the National Association of Canadians of Origin in India.

"Most discrimination is not overt, but we still get poor treatment in terms of job availability and pay. And new immigration rules make it harder and discriminate against people from Asia."

Khanna said the role of East Indians in building Canada has been largely ignored by the news media.

"We pay our way, we work and we don't go on welfare. In British Columbia, we have 70,000 to 80,000 people, mainly working people. We started coming here in 1904, and are the backbone of the lumber industry."

"There are 200,000 in Canada, many working people and many professional people."

Khanna said the association is designed to bring together East Indians no matter what their place of origin—India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, Fiji, Africa or elsewhere.

He said the organization was started a year ago in Ottawa with the help of a $5,000 grant from the secretary of state's office, and now is establishing chapters in all provinces.

Tobacco Pickers All Primed For Annual Harvest Picking

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP) — It took Michel Michaud only five minutes before he was offered a job in area tobacco fields.

The bilingual native of Embro, near Ottawa, stopped his dilapidated Ford in front of Tillsonburg's Canada Farm Labor Pool office (CFLP), placed a hastily scrawled sign indicating one year's experience as a tobacco primer in the side window and within minutes was approached by the wife of a local farmer about a job.

After bartering with the woman over wages, Michel tentatively accepted the position, saying, however, he preferred to work with the friend who accompanied him from Embro.

Later, in one of the town's bars frequented by migrant workers and farmers looking for help, Michel and his friend discovered three openings at another farm, created by departing workers.

Michel and his friend are just two of the 600 migrant workers who registered for employment with the CFLP office this summer. CFLP manager Devan Johnstone estimated that 25,000 workers are needed for the annual seven-week harvest, which began early in August. His office, in conjunction with Canada Manpower Centres across Ontario and Quebec, has imported 1,000 workers with 300 more expected. The difference is taken up by local, migrant and offshore workers, mainly from the Caribbean.

Manpower centres in both provinces have notified prospective tobacco workers not to enter the tobacco belt unless assured of a job.

Disregarding this, about 75 to 100 workers, mainly from Quebec, have registered each day with his office, Johnstone said.

Of this total "100 migrant workers might get jobs because of turnover," he speculated.

"But you'll find there's not many around now because the majority find they can't get jobs and have gone home."

Montreal resident, Claude Trotter, who has been working since the harvest began, said almost all the itinerant workers he's met have found work.

Seemingly an unofficial placement officer for the workers, an informed Trotter told four laborers of a farmer recruiting in a bar. This is where most workers hear about jobs, he told reporters.

Laval resident Pierre Basini was discovered along with three new friends under a picnic shelter at Coronation Park, where he spent the night.

Basini, a four-year veteran of the harvest, quit his job after four days because of poor working conditions but unless assured of a job.

Disregarding this, about 75 to 100 workers, mainly from Quebec, have registered each day with his office, Johnstone said.

"I don't think a primer (which he is) should have to take out the kiln. I'm looking for a good relationship with the farmer," he said adding that migrant workers need a union for protection. The pony-tailed man said he telephoned his former employer when he first arrived but the farmer had all the workers he needed unless about jobs, he told reporters.

He added Quebec's even bleaker employment situation forced him to return to the area after promising himself last year he would never work another harvest.

"I even quit smoking," he said.

In the two weeks she's been here, one woman from Quebec has worked only one day when she began sharing alternate day's employment with a friend.

Apparently the only young woman working steadily during the harvest is Tamie Olah of Tillsonburg.

The eight-year-old has apparently her fresh drink stand outside the CFLP's office twice in the last week and served "a whole bunch of people."

LIDDY TO GET PAROLE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal parole commissioner today decided not to delay the Sept. 7 parole of Watergate burglar E. Gordon Liddy on account of his participation in a prison hunger strike, the U.S. Justice department announced.

Regional commissioner Joseph A. Nardosa of Philadelphia reviewed Liddy's role in the "food boycott" staged at the Allenwood Federal Prison Camp in Pennsylvania shortly after Liddy won a parole, providing he pays a $40,000 fine.

Nardosa could have postponed the parole date or called for a hearing on a possible revocation of the parole decision, but decided to make no change, a spokesman said.

Liddy, who received a 30-year sentence for his role in the Watergate scandal and 18 months for contempt because he refused to talk, became eligible for parole after President Jimmy Carter commuted his sentence to eight years.

He had served 33 months of the 20-year sentence plus the 18-months for contempt, the stiffest sentence handed down against the entire array of Watergate defendants.

Shortly after the national commission acted last July 12, Liddy joined with more than half the 500 Allenwood inmates in protesting about food, laundry, furloughs, visiting hours and other complaints at the prison.

About 50 Allenwood prisoners, including Liddy, were transferred to the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., as punishment. Liddy shortly afterward was transferred to the Federal Correctional Institution at Danbury, Conn.

Caydoza made his decision after reviewing a report of the food boycott by a prison disciplinary committee, a spokesman said.

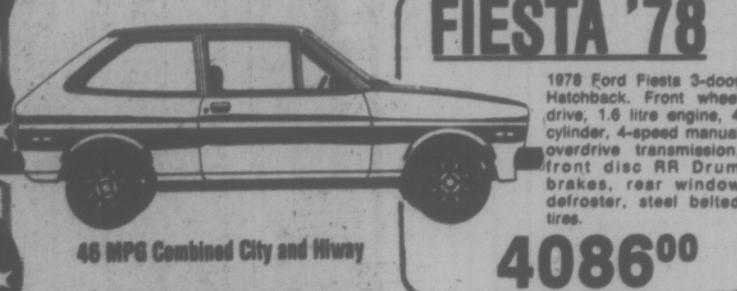

TICKLISH NUZZLE is given to David Adair, 12, after he fed five-week-old fawn Chico its lunch. The fawn, at Sunny Valley Wildlife Park at Owen Sound, Ont., was orphaned when seven days old.

Pacific Coast Guardians Plan Reunion

Veterans of the Royal Canadian Navy's Fishermen's Reserve, set up to guard the Pacific coast in the Second World War, will hold a reunion Saturday, Oct. 1, at HMCS Discovery in Vancouver.

Because of the RCN's commitment elsewhere, fishermen and tug boat operators were enlisted in the reserve because of their knowledge of the rocks and reefs on the Pacific coast.

There were 400 men in the original reserve. Another 600 not used for replacements were recruited later and those were given commando training, going overseas to man the landing barges of Normandy and Sicily.

Among the jobs handled on the Pacific coast by the reserve were regular inspections of abandoned mine shafts suspected of being used or developed as potential enemy submarine bases and checking reports of radio interference which might have come from illegal radio sets.

Another of the reasons the reserve was formed was the knowledge that Japan had many naval reservists scattered throughout the British Columbia fishing fleet in the 1930s.

It is reported that, under the influence of sake, some of the Japanese reservists had boasted Japan would one day invade Canada and they (the Japanese reservists) would take an active part in the invasion.

Some of the vessels used by the RCN's fishermen's reserve were built in the United States Coast Guard as submarine chasers in the First World War.

When the Volstead Act was passed in the U.S. and the country went dry, surplus submarine chasers were snapped up and converted into rum runners."

One of these, U.S. submarine chaser 341, became the Marauder and later HMCS Marauder when her owner, Duncan Sim, became an officer in the fishermen's reserve.

The Oct. 1 reunion will consist of a buffet dinner, followed by dancing.

BERE FERRERS, England (CP)—Locals in this Devonshire community suspect the ghost of a landlady, an eccentric who was so fat that she had to go downstairs backwards, is behind recent spooky happenings at the Plough Inn pub.

FUNERAL WEDNESDAY FOR HERBERT MORRIS

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. in Christ Church Cathedral for retired stockbroker Herbert Morris, who died Friday of a heart attack at his home at 1003 Hollywood Place. He was 76.

Born in Liverpool, England, he worked for a subsidiary of Lever Brothers for more than 30 years and was manager of the subsidiary's operations in Malaya, Nigeria, Iraq and other Middle East countries.

He married Ina Ruth Castle of Victoria in Singapore in 1931. They returned to Victoria in 1933 and he joined Hagar and Swaine, later Pitfield, Mackay, Ross, as a stockbroker, retiring last May. He was a member of the Victoria Golf Club and was a one-time president.

Morris is survived by his wife, Ina Ruth, at the family home, and their son, Barry, in England.

U.S. Aims To Beat Deserts

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—U.S. President Jimmy Carter said in a message to a United Nations conference today the spread of deserts is one of "the serious problems of our age" and pledged U.S. support for a world effort to protect natural resources.

"The United States will do its utmost to support a long-term effective world effort to protect the earth's natural resources," Carter said.

Carter's message was read to the U.N. Conference on Desertification, which opened a 12-day meeting today to explore ways to slow the loss of arable land to deserts.

About 1,500 representatives from about 100 countries are taking part in the mostly technical meetings on controlling deserts, which are now estimated to cover nearly one-third of the earth's land surface.

"One of the serious problems of our age is the accelerating spread of deserts and desert-like conditions, with the resulting malnutrition and human poverty," Carter told the delegates.

"Since desertification is a worldwide phenomenon—my own country is even now experiencing one of the worst droughts in its history—the United Nations has appropriately taken the lead in examining it," he said.

Delegates to the conference are hoping to draw up what they call a "plan of action to combat desertification," a process said to be claiming 14 million acres of productive land every year.

The desertification conference was set up after a devastating six-year drought scourged a wide portion of the lower Sahara region known as the Sahel.

Thieves Share Loot

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police said today that thieves who took $400 worth of meat from the Oxford Golf and Country Club near here Saturday felt it would be greedy to keep the entire haul to themselves, so they donated part of it to the Salvation Army.

Constable David MacDonald said thieves broke into the clubhouse and took beef filets, sirloin steaks, short ribs and crab legs.

He said that shortly after the break-in, a Salvation Army captain received an anonymous telephone call saying some meat could be found on the steps of the Salvation Army's office.

About $100 worth of short ribs was found on the steps.

MacDonald said that when the golf club was informed of the location of the meat, it donated the meat to the Salvation Army.

Police are investigating the theft.

Rhodesia Peace Talks Snagged?

Times News Service

PRETORIA — U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young and Foreign Secretary David Owen of Britain met for four hours today with Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa in their search for a peaceful settlement in Rhodesia, then scheduled another session for later today.

A British spokesman also said the two envoys' scheduled departure for Kenya Tuesday might be delayed.

Observers here took the announcement of a second round of talks and possible delayed departure as an indication the talks were not going smoothly.

Vorster's endorsement of the plan is crucial because his white minority regime gives economic and military support to Rhodesia and thus has an influential voice in that country's affairs.

Young and Owen arrived in Johannesburg Sunday from Lusaka, Zambia, where they made limited progress in persuading black Rhodesian nationalists and African heads of state to support the plan.

Owen, who has warned Rhodadesia that the British-U.S. plan could be its last chance of a peaceful settlement, told reporters on his arrival that an "internationally acceptable negotiated settlement" was essential.

"Anything else will allow the violence to continue for many years."

But he said Britain would not offer South Africa any "trade-offs" in exchange for pressuring Prime Minister Ian Smith into accepting the Anglo-American peace plan.

"Deals don't appeal to anyone," he said. "I don't think they appeal to this government and they do not appeal to ours."

Young and Owen are expected to confer with Smith in Salisbury Thursday.

Details of the Anglo-U.S. plan are expected to be announced officially later this week, but Smith already has rejected one of its requirements — that Rhodesia's army be disbanded before blacks take over.

Meanwhile, The Rand Daily Mail says South African po-

Juggled Figures Hurting Victoria

By AL FORREST

Times Staff

Victoria is losing out on hundreds of jobs because of the political vindictiveness of the federal government. Conservative MP Allan McKinnon said today.

He said Ottawa is using an arbitrary number on unemployment in each region to award grants under the Canada Works program.

Ottawa's estimate for Victoria is 5.1 per cent.

(Canada) Manpower estimates that Victoria's unemployment is above the provincial average of 5.5 per cent.)

"It has become clear Ottawa is playing politics with the Canada Works program," McKinnon said today.

The eight Liberal ridings in B.C. are receiving an average of $1.4 million each under the program while the 13 Conservative ridings are getting only about one-third that much at an average of $330,769 each.

Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich, both Tory ridings, are each getting only the minimum $100,000.

"We have received applications for over 200 projects which would have employed a total of about 1,400 people in Victoria," McKinnon said.

"However, because the grant is only the minimum $100,000, we will be able to approve only three projects employing a total of about 21 people."

"We will have to reject about 197 projects which could have employed 1,379. This is a very bleak prospect."

A similar number of jobs will be lost in Esquimalt-Saanich because the grant is only $100,000.

When the grants were first announced at the beginning of August, McKinnon protested to federal Manpower minister Bud Cullen and was told by his office that the grants were based on unemployment figures.

It subsequently became clear the grants were based on arbitrary numbers, McKinnon said. For example, the work force in Victoria was estimated at 42,000 to create an unemployment level of 5.1 per cent.

The number appears to have been picked out of the air. The work force couldn't possibly be that high."

He said there are 66,000 voters in the riding of whom 20,000 are over 65.

"This leaves only 46,000 and many are housewives. There

B.C. Worry In Swedish Devaluation

STOCKHOLM (CP) — The

Swedish government devalued the krona about 10 per cent today as part of an economic stabilization program. The payroll tax on industry was lowered to boost exports, and a general price freeze was ordered, effective through Oct. 31, in an attempt to hold the time down.

The belt-tightening crisis package means that "even urgent social reforms" must be shelved until economic balance is restored, Premier Thorbjorn Faehnlin said.

In Vancouver Don Lanskill, president of the council of Forest Industries, said today there is concern in the British Columbia forest industry over Sweden's decision to devalue its currency.

Lanskill said Sweden is the province's main competitor in the pulp and lumber markets of the United Kingdom and Europe.

He said P.C. has enjoyed some competitive advantage over the last year, largely because of the lower value of the Canadian dollar.

Lanskill said that although it is too early to predict what total effect the 10 per cent Swedish devaluation will have on the ability of the industry to compete in Europe, it will be unfavorable.

McClennan, speaking at the second annual symposium of ambulance techniques being held at the Cariboo College here during the weekend, said there are approximately 600 preventable accidents each year in British Columbia.

By "preventable," said McClennan, "we mean that someone's life can be saved if they are reached and cared for in time."

The setting up of 75 ambulance-based stations should speed up communications between ambulance personnel, RCMP, hospitals, forestry and regional ambulance staff, an ambulance service spokesman said.

McClennan said the government wants to raise the standards of the ambulance service to level EMA 1 for part-time staff and EMA 2 for full-time staff. EMA 1 is a basic level involving driving, stretcher technique and first aid.

The spokesman said the government is aiming mostly at raising the standards of regional ambulance staff.

Ambulance personnel in large population centres such as Kamloops, Victoria and Vancouver are at the EMA 2, or advanced level, he added.

"I don't want to raise any false hopes," McClennan said. "But we would like to raise the number of ambulance staff in the province, if, and I stress if, the economy of the province stays in healthy condition."

Standard Brands Buys Food Firm

The provincial government's move to opt out of Swan Valley Foods Ltd. neared completion today with an announcement that one of Canada's biggest food processors is to take over the Richmond-based phase of the operation.

Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt said Standard Brands Ltd. had acquired all the shares of Swan Valley, whose assets consist primarily of the Richmond plant which produces envelope in foil-plastic pouches.

Standard Brands will assume day-to-day operations of the plant purchased by the former NDP government, pending necessary federal approvals, said Hewitt.

No price was given for the sale, but the minister said full details of the transaction would be released once the deal is completed.

Earlier this year, the Swan Valley potato processing plant at Creston was sold to the Hardee Farms group under the condition that the company completed construction of the plant's facilities and keep the operation in business for at least three years.

The government agreed in April to sell the Creston operation to the Ontario company for $1.5 million.

The arrangement is that if, after three years, the company can prove to the government that the operation is not viable, Swan Valley will revert back to the government.

EXTRA OIL HIKE

OTTAWA (CP) — Six major oil companies will be allowed to increase the price of a gallon of gasoline and home heating oil by between two-tenths of a cent and 1.5 cents effective Tuesday in addition to increases already approved by the federal government.

Earlier, the government approved a 3.2 cent a gallon increase effective Tuesday for gasoline and heating oil because of a federal-provincial agreement last spring raising the well-head price of crude oil by $1 a barrel.

That increase came into effect July 1, but the companies were prevented from passing the higher price on to consumers for 60 days to allow time to use up existing inventories of lower-priced fuel.

The board said the increases it is allowing the companies are: British Petroleum, two-tenths of a cent on gasoline and heating oil; Irving Oil Ltd., nine-tenths of a cent on gasoline and heavy fuel oil; Pacific Petroleum Ltd., 1.5 cents on gasoline, heating oil and heavy fuel oil; Texaco Canada Ltd., eight-tenths on gasoline, nine-tenths on heating oil and seven-tenths on heavy fuel oil; Ultramar Ltd., five-tenths of a cent on gasoline, heating oil and heavy fuel oil; and Shell Oil Ltd. four-tenths of a cent on gasoline, heating oil and heavy fuel oil.

The spokesman said the government is aiming mostly at raising the standards of regional ambulance staff.

Ambulance personnel in large population centres such as Kamloops, Victoria and Vancouver are at the EMA 2, or advanced level, he added.

Aussies Probe Beef After Poisoning

CANBERRA (AP) — The

Australian government ordered a thorough investigation into the allegation that Australian beef may have been responsible for an outbreak of salmonella food poisoning in the northeastern United States.

Ian Sinclair, the minister for primary industry, said he views the report from the U.S. National Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta with "great concern."

Sinclair said it is possible that an initial minimal contamination from any source had been allowed to multiply because of less-than-perfect handling during and after processing."

He said, however, that he believes the Australian beef industry's hygiene standards are "second to none" and satisfy the most stringent standards imposed by importing countries.

The national director of the Australian Cattlemen's Association, Barry Cassell, said Australia's processing standards are far higher than those in the United States. He said any infection probably took place after the meat arrived there, and he accused the U.S. of trying to use the disease as an excuse to lower the import quota on Australian beef.

However, an official of the meat industry employees' union said there is danger of salmonella infection because some of the exported meat is not subject to the strict control of the primary industries department. The government said it is investigating the charge.

South Africa Told to Quit N-Bomb Test

Times News Services

TOKYO — U.S. arms negotiator Gerald Smith today confirmed reports that the United States and the Soviet Union cooperated in dissuading South Africa from carrying out a nuclear test, Japanese officials reported.

The officials said Smith, in Tokyo to attend U.S.-Japanese nuclear talks, explained the U.S.-Soviet co-operation when he paid a courtesy call to Japanese Foreign Minister Ichiro Hatoyama.

Smith told Hatoyama a tip

from Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev developed into the co-operation with the United States and three West European nations in preventing South Africa's plan to conduct a nuclear test. The three other countries were France and West Germany.

The Washington Post said the Soviet Union, without specifying the sources of its information, told the Carter administration Aug. 6 that South Africa was secretly preparing to detonate an atomic explosion in the Kalahari Desert.

It said President Jimmy Carter was visiting his home in Plains, Ga., when the acting chief of the Soviet embassy in Washington called at the White House to deliver an urgent personal message from Brezhnev.

Brezhnev's message, which was relayed by officials of the National Security Council, contained the text of an announcement scheduled to be made public two days later by the official Soviet news agency Tass, The Post said.

At his news conference last Tuesday, 17 days after receipt of the Soviet message, Carter assured the U.S. people that his administration had received South Africa's promise to detonate a nuclear test will be taken "now or in the future."

Assistants controllers at Prestwick, the Scottish airport that handles much trans-Atlantic air traffic, said they will continue their strike.

Strike leaders said that if the French and Spanish controllers join forces with them, they could pose a "powerful new threat" to air traffic in Western Europe. But air traffic has continued although the Spanish controllers began their slowdown a year ago.

The French began theirs on Friday and the British strikers staged a slowdown at London's Heathrow and Gatwick airports for 10 days before they went on strike last Thursday.

Leaders of the French air controllers' union were to meet today to decide their response to the British strikers' strike.

British Airways reported a gradual improvement in the situation Sunday, the third day of the strike.

"Flights are being maintained by cancelling lightly booked flights and filling up other aircraft," a spokesman for the Civil Aviation Authority at Heathrow said.

"We're also being helped by the fact up to 50 per cent of passengers have headed abroad to find other means of transportation over the holiday weekend."

Officials at Heathrow reported 40 per cent of the airport's scheduled flights were cancelled Sunday. British Airways said it is investigating the cause of the cancellation.

It wasn't the average weekend for Victoria's sports crowd.

National and international honors were inbound today as the result of Victoria's accomplishments at the weekend.

Jim Rutledge, 18, became the second Victorian in 20 years to lay claim to the Canadian junior men's golf championship (page 13).

Tennis stars Wendy Barlow and Jennifer Bland brought in other national titles following the Canadian junior closed championships in Montreal (page 15).

Juan de Fuca Whalers captured the Canadian intermediate "B" lacrosse championship in Burnaby (page 12) while softball standouts Rosemary Fuller and Barbara Tribe gave Victoria an interest in B.C.'s success in the national senior women's softball tournament. Fuller was named the outstanding pitcher after helping Doc's Blues of New Westminster to the title while Tribe was selected the most valuable player (page 12).

Victoria rowers Inn de Lure and Kelly Jacklin carried home bronze medals after helping Canada to a third-place finish in Amsterdam (page 13).

And there may be more on the way. Victoria Shamrocks, leading the best-of-seven final 3-2, hope to wrap up the Western Lacrosse Association championship while Victoria Bates are on their way to Hull, Que., to defend the national senior men's softball title (page 12).
